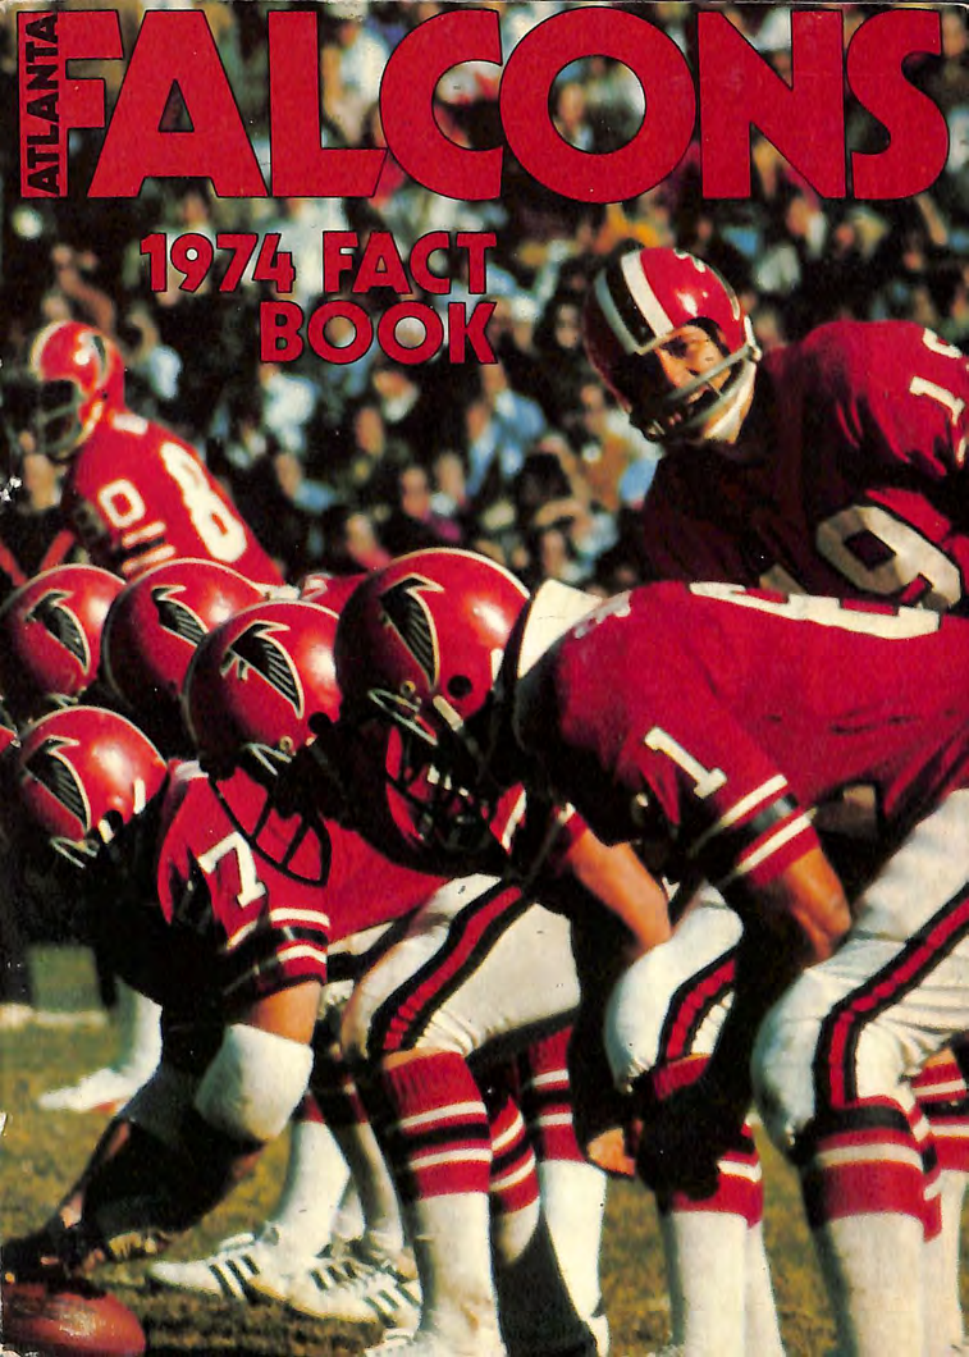
ATLANTA FALCONS

1974 FACT BOOK



It takes a level head and a loving heart to be a Delta professional.

When you're behind an airport ticket counter, you have to know your job. Fares, routes, connections, baggage, how to use a CRT computer and automatic ticket printer. And you have to work fast to prevent long lines, short tempers.

But a Delta professional is much more than a ticket seller. To her, each ticket is a different person. A man caught in a traffic jam who has five minutes to make his plane. A grandmother on her first flight. A teenager counting out his change for a trip home.

And when it comes to people, the Delta professionals couldn't care more. DELTA

RANKIN M. SMITH
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Rankin McEachern Smith's first mark on football wasn't memorable at all.

Some 25 years later, however, his second impression would become indelible on the history of professional sports in the Southeast.

It happened on June 30, 1965, when he was awarded a National Football League franchise for approximately $8.5 million.

Smith's first real introduction to the game came in the early 1940s at Bolles School in Jacksonville, Fla. It was there that he spent one season as a 125-pound substitute halfback.

He remained extremely devoted to football throughout his collegiate career at Emory University and the University of Georgia although he never played again.

At the end of his freshman year of college, war was breaking out throughout Europe. Smith, whose sports interests also include bonefishing and quail hunting, enlisted as an Air Force instructor in Texas and later became a combat pilot in the Pacific.

Upon receiving his discharge in early 1945, he resumed his education at the University of Georgia.

Later he launched a career that would lead him to the pinnacle of success in the insurance business. He began as a debit agent in Hot Springs, Ark., for the Life Insurance Company of Georgia. His grandfather was one of the co-founders of the company.

Today Smith, a central figure in several charitable and civic organizations, is president and chief executive officer of Life of Georgia. He also serves countless corporations as a director.

Football weekends are always among the busiest of the year for Smith. Friday nights usually find him attending prep games at Lovett School, where his oldest son was once an all-state performer. Saturdays, it's off to University of Georgia games. And Sundays, of course, belong to the Falcons.

Upon his purchase of the Falcons, he gave the club the corporate name of The Five Smiths, Inc. It is named for his children: Rankin, Jr., 26; Carroll Christine, 25; Mrs. John O. (Dorothy Ann) Knox, 23; Taylor, 21, and, Nancy Karen, 16.

Smith, who has two grandsons, John O. and Bryan Knox, ages 3 and 1 respectively, was born Oct. 29, 1925, in Atlanta.

FRANK E. WALL
PRESIDENT

Frank Elliott Wall was there the day the Atlanta Falcons were born.

Throughout the club's life, he has always been at its side serving it loyally and with great acumen.

And during that eight-year period, the Pulaski, Ga., native has come to be recognized as one of the most respected men in the National Football League.

Assessing Wall's career in professional football, Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell once said:

"I think Frank is one of the more competent front office men in pro football, as well as being a truly fine gentleman. He has indeed been an important asset to the National Football League.

"He has acquired knowledge that even a fellow like me could—and does—listen to.

"In other words," continued Modell, "the NFL no longer waits for Frank Wall to call; it calls him."

Prior to joining the Falcons in 1965, Wall youngest of five brothers, was a partner in Garrett and Wall, an Atlanta accounting firm that he co-founded.

When insurance executive Rankin M. Smith first announced plans to purchase an NFL franchise, Wall was called upon to help in the financial arrangements. In mid-1966, he gave up his career as a Certified Public Accountant and joined the Falcons full-time as vice president and treasurer.

He was named general manager in late January of 1967 and stepped up to the club presidency on Jan. 6, 1970.

Wall, one of the eight Falcon stockholders, began his working career at various odd jobs during his youth in south Georgia including one era of employment as a watermelon picker at 50 cents a day. Having spent most of his youth working, Wall's view of sports has been primarily as a fan. It is for, perhaps, that reason that he empathizes with fans of professional football so strongly that he has stated on several occasions that "football does not belong to the players, to the coaches or to the owners; it belongs to the fans."

Because of color blindness, the 56-year-old gentleman was rejected by the Air Corps in World War II. A short time later, however, he was drafted and assigned to the Army medical corps. He spent three and one-half years in combat all over Europe.

Wall, born June 14, 1918, and his wife, Jean, have four children. They are Christy, 14; Stacie, 3, and twins Tye and Jamie, 1.

NORM VAN BROCKLIN
HEAD COACH AND GENERAL MANAGER

The yesterdays of Atlanta Falcons history were erased within days after Norm Van Brocklin became head coach in 1968.

No longer was it a two-year-old expansion club that played like one, or worse.

Assignments, blocking and running, weren't missed as often anymore. Not with the same degree of regularity, especially. If they were, that problem—individually and collectively—was solved in short order.

Step by step, Van Brocklin and his staff virtually tore down the Falcon machine he had inherited and methodically began rebuilding it. Their work habits soon stretched well past 12, 13, 14 hours a day.

He has attacked the Atlanta job with the same drive that for 12 seasons made him one of the NFL's all-time superstars. During his playing career he led the Los Angeles Rams to four NFL championships (1949, 50, 51 and 55) and Philadelphia to one (1960).

Soon after playing his final game, Van Brocklin, a 1971 inductee into Pro Football's Hall of Fame, accepted his first NFL coaching job. He was head coach of the Minnesota Vikings for six seasons, resigning in 1966.

One of nine children, Van Brocklin first began making a name for himself in athletics at Acalanes High School in Walnut Creek, Calif. After a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, he became an All-America quarterback at the University of Oregon.

The Van Brocklins have six children: Mrs. William (Karen) Vanderyt 24; Lynn, 22; Mrs. Joe (Judy) Clarke, 21; Shelly Jo, 11; Allen, 10, and Randy, 5. They also have two grandchildren, Courtney Clarke, 1, and Kurtis Vanderyt, born in January, 1974. The coach was born March 15, 1926, in Eagle Butte, S. D.

Assistant Coaches

Marion Campbell, Head Def. Coach When Marion Campbell first joined the Atlanta staff in 1969, even the finest of barometers would have been heavily taxed to find anything positive about the Falcons' defensive pressure. It was, at times, almost non-existent. From the club's inception in 1966, opponents had been averaging 384.4 yards per game. Since then, however, such heavy traffic has been curtailed drastically. It was down a total of 130.2 per game from the old mark in 1973 alone. And that was good enough to rank third in the National Football Conference and sixth in the whole NFL. Last season, for instance, the opposition averaged 10 less first downs than in 1972; 292 less total yards; 274 less yards passing, and, averaged 19.6 less per game. Campbell, head of the club's overall defense, will spend most of his 1974 on-the-field time working with the defensive line. He was a stellar tackle at the University of Georgia and later played in the NFL with San Francisco and Philadelphia. With the Eagles in 1959, he was named to The Sporting News' all-pro team. En route to the Falcons' staff, his coaching assignments were: Defensive line, Boston, 1962-63; chief of defense, Minnesota, 1964-66; defensive line, Los Angeles, 1966-68, and head of defense, Atlanta, 1969 to present. He and his wife, June, have two children, Scott, 12, and Alicia, 9. Born: May 25, 1929, in Chester, S. C.

Billy Ray Barnes, Off. Backfield Coach Billy Ray Barnes knew only one direction during his NFL playing career. And that was: Straight ahead! Since joining the Falcons in 1971, he has taught his running backs the same route. That was most notably reflected in the 1973 team statistics. To wit: Falcon backs increased by 42 the total of ball control plays (879 to 837); scored more rushing touchdowns, and, had 10 more first downs rushing than the year before. The highlight of Barnes' nine-year NFL playing career came in the 1960 NFL Championship Game in which he starred as Philadelphia stopped Green Bay, 17-13, for the title. An All-America at Wake Forest, he was the Eagles' No. 2 draft choice in 1957. He also played with Washington and Minnesota. Upon his retirement, he had 3421 career rushing yards, 29 touchdowns rushing, 153 pass receptions and nine touchdowns receiving. Career coaching record: Head Coach, Charleston, W. Va., team in the Continental League, 1968 (8-3); receivers, New Orleans, 1969-70, and, Atlanta, 1971 to present. Billy and Janice Barnes have twin daughters, Billi and Lani, 5. Born: May 14, 1935, in Landis, N. C.

Fred Bruney, Def. Backfield Coach Nobody laughs at the Atlanta secondary anymore. And especially not opposing quarterbacks. Fred Bruney has made sure of that, molding the Falcons' defensive backfield into one of the NFL's best against the pass. The group's guard against the run has been raised considerably, too. In 1973, for example, the Falcons were third in total pass defense in the NFL. They were first in the National Football Conference, allowing opponents an average of 102.1 yards per game. Only Miami and New England were better. Bruney, a standout collegian at Ohio State, played 10 years in the pros. He was with San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles and Boston of the old AFL. He was all-pro at Boston in 1960. His coaching assignments have included: Defensive backs, Boston, 1962-63; defensive backs, Philadelphia, 1964-68, and defensive backs, Atlanta, 1969 to present. Fred and his wife, Louise, have five children; Chuck, 18; Susan, 10; Lori, 7; Rebecca, 4, and, Richard, 2. Born: Dec. 30, 1931, in Martin's Ferry, Ohio.

Campbell

Barnes

Harry Gilmer, Receivers Coach One of the first letters in the Deep South's football alphabet of all-time greats is still G—for Harry Gilmer. His accomplishments at the University of Alabama are legendary. One of Dixie's first truly great All-Americans, he was tabbed by Washington as the nation's No. 1 draft choice in 1948. When a leg injury crippled him as a rookie, Gilmer proved his versatility by switching to defense and becoming a two-time all-pro defensive back. He also played at Detroit. Into his 18th year of coaching in the NFL, his other positions have been: Offensive and defensive backs, Pittsburgh, 1957-60; defensive backs, Minnesota, 1961-64; head coach, Detroit, 1965 (6-7-1) and 1966 (4-9-1); quarterbacks, St. Louis, 1967-69; and, Falcons, 1970, to present. Harry and Katherine Gilmer have three married daughters, Mrs. Paul (Connie) West, 27; Mrs. Fran LaRoque, 26, and, Mrs. Terry (Dale) Morgan, 22, and a son, Drew, 18. The Gilmers have two grandchildren, Niki and George LaRoque, ages 6 and 4, respectively. The coach was born April 14, 1926, in Birmingham, Ala.

Bob Griffin, Speciality Teams Coach The 1974 season will find Bob Griffin busier than ever. If that's possible. The hard-working assistant coach will have far more responsibility in the new year. In addition to coaching the speciality teams, he will be in charge of film exchange, training camp, and, will be the follow-up man regarding team travel plans. An all-star center-linebacker during his college days at the University of Arkansas, Griffin spent nine seasons in professional football. In the NFL, he played with Los Angeles, which made him its No. 2 draft choice in 1952, Detroit and St. Louis. He also played one year at Calgary of the Canadian Football League. He retired in 1961 after undergoing his sixth knee operation. He was with St. Louis at the time. His coaching duties have been: Defense, University of Tulsa, 1963-65; defensive line, Denver, 1966; offensive line, Montreal of the CFL, 1967-68, and Falcons, 1969 to present. He is a bachelor. Born: Feb. 12, 1929, in Fort Worth, Tex.

Marv Matuszak, Linebackers Coach By reputation, Marv Matuszak is no stranger to the Falcons. Or to anybody else in professional football, for that matter. Regarded by his peers in the NFL as one of the game's best defensive instructors, he joined the staff in mid-January. He is in charge of linebackers, a position he played in all-star fashion as a collegian and through 10 professional seasons. A two-time All-America at the University of Tulsa, he played with Pittsburgh, San Francisco and Baltimore of the NFL and Buffalo and Denver of the old AFL. He was all-pro in both leagues, at San Francisco (1957) and Buffalo (1963). He retired in 1966. His coaching experience includes: Player-coach, Denver, 1965; head of overall defense, Denver, 1966; head coach and general manager, Alabama (Huntsville) Hawks of the Professional Football League, 1967 (Western Division championship, 9-3); linebackers, British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, 1968-71, and linebackers, New Orleans, 1971-73. He and his wife, Noreen, have two children: A married daughter, Mrs. Gary (Linda) Blacklidge, 19, and a son, Robert, 7. Born: Sept. 12, 1931, in South Bend, Ind.

Duane Putnam, Off. Line Coach Almost 12 years after his retirement, Duane Putnam looks like he could still go one-on-one with the meanest of NFL defensive linemen. He stresses the same kind of conditioning for his offensive linemen. Strength and agility development are two of his pet projects. He and team trainer Jerry Rhea co-coordinate the club's off-season weights program. One of the smallest offensive guards in the NFL during his career, Putnam was, nonetheless, one of the most respected and feared. One of the game's quickest and surest-blocking lineman of his time, Putnam was an all-pro selection at Los Angeles three times (1955, 57-58). He also played at Cleveland. He joined the Falcons in 1970 and this has been his lone NFL coaching stop. Duane and Patty

Putnam

Putnam have a married daughter, Mrs. Sam (Pam) Kingsfield, 22, and a son, Steve, 20. The Putnams have one grandson, Kevin, who is one year old. Born: Sept. 5, 1928, in Pollack, S. D.

Tom Braatz, Dir. of Player Personnel About the only college campus that Tom Braatz or one of his scouts didn't visit in 1973 was either: (1) Too poor to field a football team; (2) not interested in fielding one, or (3) had an all-female enrollment. Such is the extent of his department's search for talent. Braatz, a one-time Marquette star, was a Falcons scout until 1968, when be became director of player personnel. He split his five-year playing career in the NFL with Washington and Dallas. Upon his retirement in 1961, he became an arms demonstrator for the Ithica, N. Y., Gun Co. He and his wife, Jeri, have two sons, Tommy, 13, and Jon, 8.

Working under Braatz are scouts Duke Babb, 39, who played at Dallas, Houston and San Francisco; Jon Jelacic, 37, a one-time New York Giant and Oakland Raider; Bill Jobko, 38, one-time Falcon player, team captain and assistant coach; John Nikcevich, 45, who joined the Falcons last season after eight and one-half years with the San Francisco 49ers' scouting department, and, Bob Riggle, 29, a brilliant 1966 Falcon rookie whose career was shortened by a severe knee injury.

Jerry Rhea, Trainer One of the most respected and knowledgeable men in his profession, Jerry Rhea, 37, is beginning his sixth year with the Falcons. Earlier, the popular Texan was with the Los Angeles Rams. A graduate of Texas A&M, he worked his way through college as a student trainer during Bear Bryant's head coaching regime at A&M. Jerry, born Sept. 12, 1935, in Ennis, Tex., also is in charge of the Falcons' off-season weights program. He and his wife, Beverly, have one son, John, 15. Freddy Schwake, 29, is the assistant trainer. A Texas at El Paso graduate, he was born June 10, 1945, in Pyote, Tex. He and his wife, Lynne, have no children.

Whitey Zimmerman, Equip. Manager Darwin (Whitey) Zimmerman's value to the Falcons' football operations is such that it really can't be measured. Surveyed, either. He was especially busy in 1973. In addition to his usual duties, he also handled all the club's travel arrangements. Zimmerman, with the Falcons since their 1966 inception, worked previously for the St. Louis football Cardinals. He and his wife, Shelia, have five children: Jerry, 21; Terry, 16; Larry, 13; Greg, 9, and Scott, 6. Whitey was born July 25, 1929, in St. Louis, Mo. His right-hand man is Horace Daniel, 36. He has been with the club since 1967 as its assistant equipment manager. Born May 7, 1938, in Atlanta, he and his wife, Shirley, have two children, Kim, 7, and Kennon, 5.

The Veterans

Nick Bebout, T, 6-5, 260 Challenge, it seems, is just another surname for Nick Bebout. Seems as if there has been one in front of him most of his life. The last one he faced—and beat, just like most of the others—reared its head in mid-July 1973 when he reported to the Falcons' training camp in Greenville, S. C. There he was confronted with this apparent option: Beat out three veterans, including George Kunz, an all-pro the past three seasons. Or, face the possibility of having to re-pack his bags and return to Wyoming. So, he hitched up his pants, went to work, made the club's 47-man roster and eventually became one of the first 40. He saw some offensive duty, but worked mainly on the speciality teams. 2nd year. Games—13 in 1973.

COLLEGE Despite a nagging shoulder injury that put him on the University of Wyoming sidelines for four full games, Bebout was still a near unanimous selection to the 1972 All-Western Athletic Conference team.

PERSONAL Among the first challenges in Bebout's life were to (1) learn to play the guitar; (2) be a rodeo cowboy, and, (3) to drive a stock car in actual NASCAR competition. He did them all. Full name: Nick Bebout. Married, one child. Off-season residence: Decatur, Ga. Born: May 5, 1951, in Shoshoni, Wyo.

Greg Brezina, LB, 6-1, 220 Greg Brezina certainly wasn't on his feet much during the NFL Sundays of 1973. He spent most of his time stretched out, either diving at some running back, wrestling one to the ground, or buried at or near the bottom of a pileup. He was a busy young man, as reflected in the unofficial list of individual tackles and assists for the season. He was third in one (89) and second (46) in the other, respectively. He also showed some pretty nifty footwork, intercepting two passes. He went three yards with a Saints pass against New Orleans [Sept. 16] and 36 yards with one against San Diego. It was felt Brezina would never make it in professional football due to his lack of size. That is one reason, scouts insist, he wasn't picked until the 11th round of the 1968 draft. Nonetheless, the Falcons saw fit to choose him and their decision proved valid and wise. 6th year. Games—11 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE The Brezina name is legend at the University of Houston. Greg, named to The Sporting News' All-America team in 1967, had four brothers who also starred for the Cougars. They were Bobby, who later played for Green Bay and Houston; Gus, Bernie, Butch and Steve. Greg played in the Blue-Gray Game in Montgomery, Ala.

PERSONAL Louise, Tex., High was a power to be reckoned with throughout Brezina's schoolboy career. As a senior all-state quarterback, he threw 26 touchdown passes. He has a B.A. degree in business management. Full name: Gregory Brezina. Off-season residence: College Park, Ga. Married, two children. Born: Jan. 7, 1946, in Sinton, Tex.

Ray Brown, S, 6-2, 202 Alphabetically, he's been near the top of the list of outstanding NFL safeties for some time. After the year he had in 1973, Ray Brown should also rank high on the ability and respect charts. It was that kind of banner season for the former West Texas State star. He really flourished as a dual threat man, excelling in the secondary and at returning punts. It was in the latter category that he made his most lasting impression, as far as Atlanta's record book is concerned. He now owns six records outright. They are: Most punt returns, career [50]; most punt returns, season [40]; most punt returns, game (5); most yards gained on returns, career (434); most yards gained on returns, season (360); most yards gained on returns, one game (104), and highest average of returns, one game (26.0). Against Philadelphia, he returned four punts for 104 yards, the longest of which was 57 yards. He led the club in pass interceptions with six. He didn't make the Falcons' roster on his first try, back there in 1971. He was among the number to go on the next-to-last cut of training camp and was placed on waivers. His name was later removed from the list and by the sixth game of the year he was a starter. 4th year. Games—10 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE A strong safety throughout his career at West Texas State, Brown was an all-star performer for the Buffaloes for three straight years. He was selected by the Falcons in the sixth round of the 1971 NFL players draft.

PERSONAL Even as early as his junior year at Trimble Tech High in Fort Worth, Tex., Brown had the athletic reputation of being one of the state's best flanker-safety prospects. Full name: Raymond Madison Brown. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married. Born: Jan. 12, 1949, in Fort Worth, Tex.

Ken Burrow, WR, 6-0, 191 Through the Falcons' first nine games of 1973, Ken Burrow was having the kind of season one dreams about. Then it all became one big, bad nightmare. Against Philadelphia, the talented wide receiver sustained a cervical nerve root injury and was declared out of action for the balance of the year. He underwent neck surgery a short time later, his second such operation in six months. The first, in May, rendered him inactive through much of the preseason schedule. Once the regular championship season started, however, the ex-San Diego State star was brilliant. He had three games in which he caught two touchdown passes. He pulled in five passes for 164 yards and two TDs against the 49ers in San Francisco. His second touchdown catch against Philadelphia followed by less than four minutes the play on which he was re-injured. He was en route to the finest season of his three-year career. At the time, he had a team-leading 31 receptions for 567 yards and seven touchdowns. 4th year. Games—14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 9 in 1973.

COLLEGE After his freshman year at Utah State University, Burrow enrolled at San Diego State. And with the transfer, he moved immediately into the spotlight as one of the nation's elite pass receivers. He was especially outstanding as a senior, finishing with 54 receptions for 904 yards and 12 touchdowns.

PERSONAL Education and professional baseball went one-on-one in its attempt to get Burrow's signature upon his graduation from De Anza High in Richmond, Calif. An outstanding defensive catcher and power hitter, he was picked by the Los Angeles Dodgers in an early round of the 1967 major league draft. He has a B.S. degree in criminal justice. Full name: Kenneth Robert Burrow. Off-season residence: Encinitas, Calif. Married, one child. Born: March 29, 1948, in Richmond, Calif.

Al Dodd, WR, 6-0, 180 It was thought at the time to be a real stroke of luck when the Falcons obtained Al Dodd in a June, 1973, trade with New Orleans. Before midseason, there was no doubt. The sure-handed little Louisianan proved to be a real jewel, especially in the clutch. Many of his 19 seasonal receptions came in key situations. He proved quite adept at moving with the ball after reception, too, carrying it 291 yards, an average of 15.3 per. The season of 1969 was the biggest of the hard-working 6-0, 180-pound receiver's career. He had 37 catches for an even 600 yards. 6th year. Games—6 in 1967, 14 in 1969, 10 in 1970, 10 in 1971, 13 in 1973.

COLLEGE Defense was Dodd's football bag at Northwestern Louisiana State. And he was one of the best defenders in the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association. In fact, he set an all-time NAIA career record by intercepting 31 passes. Drafted in 1967 by Chicago as a fourth-round choice, he was waived by the Bears at season's end. He signed as a free agent with New Orleans in 1968 and was placed on the club's taxi squad. He played for the Saints three years, missing all of 1972 due to knee surgery.

PERSONAL Dodd, who grew up in the New Orleans area and lived there most of his life, set down some new roots late last season. After selling his home and sporting goods store in Gretna, La., he moved his family to Atlanta. "That should tell you what I think of this city," he said. He has a business administration degree. Full name: Alvin Roy Dodd, Sr. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married, two children. Born: Aug. 21, 1945, in New Orleans, La.

Ray Easterling, CB, 6-0, 192 Ray Easterling dedicated 1973 to improvement. And he expects, or hopes, his work will be rewarded in 1974. Coaches feel it might be, too. "I can't cover as well as some right now," the young Virginian explained early last season. "So that is what I'm going to work on." He did just that, too, working with weights daily and employing any and every exercise that would help his agility. After the opening game, he was placed on the inactive list. 3rd year. Games—8 in 1972, 1 in 1973.

COLLEGE Wanting an education first and to play college football if possible, Easterling earned enough money upon graduation from prep school to pay his own way to the University of Richmond. He won a scholarship in his sophomore year.

PERSONAL Easterling won 11 letters during his busy schoolboy career at Collegiate Prep Schools in Richmond, Va. Full name: Charles Ray Easterling. Off-season residence: Richmond, Va. Single. Born: Sept. 3, 1949, in Richmond, Va.

Clarence Ellis, S, 6-0, 190 The continuing development of Clarence Ellis as an NFL safety is best reflected in the Falcons' overall 1973 defensive statistics. He certainly did his share in helping the club successfully defend its title as the NFC's top defense against the pass. He did his part by becoming a deadlier tackler, remembering the mistakes of his rookie year and adjusting more quickly when similiar situations developed, and learning how to play the various receivers he covered. Ellis was the Falcons' No. 1 pick in the 1972 draft. He sustained a knee injury during workouts for the College All-Star Game in Chicago and underwent surgery less than 24 hours later in Atlanta. He missed the entire preseason and the first game of the regular championship season. In his pro debut, against New England, he swatted down two passes and was credited with four individual tackles. 3rd year. Games—13 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE "I've never had a better defensive back," Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian once said of Ellis. It was certainly no idle compliment, considering the career the young Michigan native had for the Fighting Irish. A sociology major, he was twice named All-America.

PERSONAL Conditioning is a year-around habit with Ellis. He stays in shape by playing a lot of basketball during the off-season, sometimes with the Falcons basketball team. Full name: Clarence Joseph Ellis, Jr. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married, two children. Born: Feb. 11, 1950, in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Fritsch

Geredine

Ted Fritsch, C, 6-2, 242 The excellence of the Falcons' punting game for the last two seasons, even John James will tell you, is due in large measure to the work of Ted Fritsch. Since the ever-hustling young man from Wisconsin assumed the duties, the club hasn't had a bad snap during either a punting situation or a placement attempt. He made an equally large contribution to the speciality teams in 1973, usually either in on the tackle or making it alone. He joined the Falcons in 1972 as a free agent. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE There was a real sameness to Fritsch's daily post-school routine while at St. Norbert. Autumn afternoons found him excelling on the football field as a center-linebacker. Sandwiched in between the remaining days of the year was time to be an all-star performer in track—as a discus champion—and in hockey, as a goalie.

PERSONAL Fritsch has a 23-year knowledge of the NFL. He has been around professional football most of his life. His dad, Ted, Sr., was an all-pro fullback with the 1945-46 world champion Green Bay Packers. Full name: Theodore Edward Fritsch. Off-season residence: Green Bay, Wisc. Single. Born: Aug. 26, 1950, in Green Bay, Wisc.

Thomas Geredine, WR, 6-2, 190 The way Thomas Geredine had it figured, one 1973 disappointment was enough for him. So just when it seemed that yet another setback was impending, the stout-hearted young Missourian really went to work. "As of this moment, I'm going to turn it on like these coaches have never seen me turn it on," he said one late August evening at training camp. He felt the coaches were about to put him on the taxi squad, an assignment the confident youngster didn't want. The results are, of course, history. When regular wide receiver Ken Burrow was declared out for the season after the ninth game, Geredine became a starter. In his debut against Minnesota, he had three receptions—one a spectacular, diving circus-like catch—for 52 yards. He caught his first TD pass, a 38-yarder, against the Jets. The first disappointment? Oh, yes. It was the 1973 draft. "I thought surely I'd be picked in the first—or at least the second-round. Certainly not the fourth! That really threw me, man. It really did." 2nd year. Games—12 in 1973.

COLLEGE Geredine was a multi-honored, All-American athlete during his career at Northeast Missouri State University. In all, he won 12 A-A citations, nine of them in track and three in football.

PERSONAL In the earliest days of training camp in 1973, with comedian Flip Wilson as the inspiration, Geredine acquired the nickname of "Geraldine." After three brief fights, however, he became known as "Killer." Full name: Thomas Allen Geredine. Single. Off-season residence: Kirkville, Mo. Born: June 17, 1950, in St. Louis, Mo.

Len Gotshalk, G, 6-4, 259 Were his value to the 1973 Falcons converted into weight, Len Gotshalk would need help lifting it. Much help, in fact. He did yeoman service, spending the early part of the season playing the role of a back-up tackle and later sharing the duties at left guard with Andy Maurer. His big plays were many, signalling the fact he has definitely arrived as a most capable NFL lineman. This comes as no surprise to his coaches. When Gotshalk joined the club in 1971, the staff felt it would just be a matter of time before he blossomed as he did in 1973. Philadelphia chose the hustling Californian in the eighth round of the 1971 draft. He joined the Falcons after being cut by the Eagles and spent 1971 on the taxi squad. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Gotshalk first whetted the interest of NFL scouts during his playing days at Santa Rosa Junior College. He generated even more attention at Humboldt State and later in the North-South All-Star Game. He graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in physical education.

PERSONAL "Mort", so nicknamed by teammates because he has worked as an apprentice mortician in off-seasons past, is of Russian-German descent. Full name: Leonard William Gotshalk. Off-season residence: Lakeport, Calif. Married, two children. Born: Oct. 21, 1949, in San Francisco, Calif.

Gotshalk

Hampton

Dave Hampton, RB, 6-0, 202 One couldn't blame Dave Hampton, really, if he developed absolute contempt for the off-season. It offers too much time for reflection, entirely too much. And especially when you live with the constant nightmares he must have had in 1972 and 1973. Eight yards, that's all he needed to escape them. Eight yards—five the first, three the next—shy of the dream of all running backs, induction into the NFL's elusive 1000-Yard Club. The one-time Wyoming star reached the 1000-mark everso briefly in the final game of 1972, only to be thrown for a six-yard loss moments later. Time permitted only one more carry and netted just one yard, leaving him with 995. Going into the 14th game of 1973, he needed 87 yards to crack 1000. At halftime he had only 26. He didn't carry the ball in the third quarter, but was called upon 16 times in the fourth. He got 58 yards, for a season-ending 997. Three away! He rushed for 100 or more yards in three games in 1973. He got 104 against New Orleans in the seasonal opener; 100 even in a winning cause against San Francisco, and 108 in the club's pulsating 20-14 win over Minnesota. In a dismal early-season 31-6 loss to Detroit, he had an exceptional night. He gained 62 yards rushing and caught six passes for 66 more yards. Hampton, Green Bay's ninth round draft choice in 1969, came to Atlanta in a 1972 trade with the Packers. 6th year. Games—14 in 1969, 6 in 1970, 13 in 1971, 13 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Although blocking was considered his strongest suit while at the University of Wyoming, Hampton, nonetheless, earned much respect as a runner. He averaged 5.5 yards per carry as a senior. His career average was 4.8.

PERSONAL During the 1973 season, Hampton hosted his own sports show on one of Atlanta's major radio stations. It proved to be one of the more popular programs in the city. He says he would like a career in some area of journalism, perhaps radio or TV, when his playing days are over. Full name: Dave Hampton. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Single. Born: May 7, 1947, in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Don Hansen, LB, 6-2, 228 Don Hansen went to training camp last season feeling he had left the 1972 Falcons with an I.O.U. By the third game of 1973, he had repaid it, though, for sure. "My 1972 grades reflected the bad season I had," said the rugged veteran linebacker. "I felt my play, most definitely, wasn't near my capabilities. And I knew why. I didn't study or concentrate enough in 1972. I went to training camp determined to work and study harder than I ever had before. I did too, and hope my grades in 1973 will reflect that." They did, too. In fact, the ex-Illinois star had a good year, recovering three drive-killing opponents' fumbles, batting down four passes and unofficially ranking in the top three in individual tackles. He also intercepted one pass. The fumble recoveries came against Los Angeles in the Falcons' exciting 15-13 victory and two against the New York Jets. He was named Falcon Player of the Year in 1971. He can play all three linebacking positions. Hansen, Minnesota's third round choice in the 1966 draft, retired after suffering a knee injury in 1968. He returned in 1969, coming to Atlanta when the club traded a draft choice to the Vikings for the rights to him. 8th year. Games—14 in 1966, 12 in 1967, 11 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE People have been getting more publicity than Hansen ever since his collegiate days at Illinois. Few have performed more consistently, however, in college or in the pros. His fellow linebacker for the Fighting Illini was Dick Butkus of the Chicago Bears. He played in the East-West Shrine All-Star game in San Francisco, the Hula Bowl in Honolulu and the College All-Star Game in Chicago.

PERSONAL In off-seasons past, Hansen has worked for one of the major real estate firms in Atlanta. Full name: Donald Ray Hansen. Off-season residence: Dunwoody, Ga. Married, three children. Born: Aug. 20, 1944, in Warrick County, Ind.

Dennis Havig, G, 6-2, 256 There's an old axiom in sports that warns if a player has a big rookie season, he'd better watch out or he might fall victim to the sophomore jinx. Through the years, some have actually been infected and their quality of performance has lagged noticeably. In the case of Dennis Havig, however, he showed a real immunity to it. As a 1972 NFL newcomer, he was named to Football Digest's and United Press International's all-pro rookie teams. He was even better in 1973, though, and proved to be one of the club's more consistent offensive linemen. The Falcons claimed him in the eighth round of the 1971 NFL players draft. He spent his "true" rookie season on the taxi squad and became the No. 1 offensive left guard in early 1972 training camp. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE On the final day of his collegiate football career, Havig tipped the scales at only 237. Because of this, pro scouts felt he might have difficulty making it in the NFL. The Falcons, attracted first by his speed (4.9 in the 40) and then his willingness to work, felt they could help him add the necessary weight. He starred in two Liberty Bowl games (1969-1970) and also played in the East-West Shrine All-Star Game in San Francisco and the Senior Bowl Game in Mobile, Ala.

PERSONAL Havig, who likes to dip snuff when he's relaxing, used to spend some of his collegiate off-seasons working in oil fields. It was there, he says, that he first started dipping. Full name: Dennis Eugene Havig. Off-season residence: Boise, Idaho. Married, one child. Born: May 6, 1949, in Powell, Wyo.

Tom Hayes, CB, 6-1, 198 Unless their memory is really minute, opposing quarterbacks will think twice before trying to complete a pass in Tom Hayes' coverage area in 1974. His deeds of 1973 certainly merit remembering. For the season he intercepted four passes and returned two of them for touchdowns. He stole a pair of Saints passes in the seasonal opener and returned one 68 scoring yards. His final interception—and second touchdown—came against St. Louis, a 38-yard play. He led the 1972 Falcons in interceptions with five. 4th year. Games—14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Hayes once went four straight years between football games. After graduation from high school, he spent two years at Riverside City (Jr.) College, which had no football team. Then for the next 24 months he was in the U.S. Army. After receiving his discharge, a younger brother, playing at San Diego State at the time, asked Aztec coaches to take a look at Tom. Impressed with what they saw, the ex-soldier earned his grant-in-aid. And soon he became one of the school's finest cornerbacks ever.

PERSONAL Traveling, meeting people from all walks of life and listening to good music are listed one-two-three as Hayes' favorite hobbies. A four-sport all-star in prep school in Riverside, Calif., he excelled in basketball and track in junior college. He spent the off-season past obtaining his bachelor's degree in human relations. Full name: Thomas Hayes, Jr. Off-season residence: San Diego, Calif. Married. Born: April 18, 1946, in Riverside, Calif.

Don Highsmith, RB, 6-0, 205 Signed by the Falcons in mid-season after being waived by Green Bay, Don Highsmith spent the remainder of the year on the taxi squad. He can play in the NFL, though, as evidenced by his three seasons with the Oakland Raiders. He was traded to Green Bay in July of 1973. 4th year. Games—14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 8 in 1972.

COLLEGE A dedicated athlete, Highsmith was the recipient of the "Spartan Award for Showing the Most Effort" upon completion of his career at

Hayes

Highsmith

Humphrey

Michigan State University. He played in the Senior Bowl Game in Mobile, Ala., the Blue-Gray Game in Montgomery, Ala., and the American Bowl in Tampa, Fla.

PERSONAL The desire for an education drove Highsmith into many part-time jobs during his collegiate days. Among them were: electrician helper, floor buffer in an office building and fork lift driver unloading trucks. Full name: Donald Cornelius Highsmith. Off-season residence: Oakland, Calif. Single. Born: March 12, 1948, in New Brunswick, N. J.

Claude Humphrey, DE, 6-5, 265 If Claude Humphrey and his prized Doberman Pinscher keep winning citations, plaques and show ribbons at their current pace, the big Falcon defensive end may soon have to seal up some of the windows in his new home. If he wishes to hang all of them up, that is. And wall space is already running out. Humphrey, who has been recognized as one of the NFL's grade A talents since his rookie year, continued to add to his collection in 1973. For the third straight time, he was listed on virtually every all-pro team named. It was his third time on the Professional Football Writers Association and The Associated Press' All-NFL first teams and fourth on Pro Football Weekly's. En route, he enjoyed one of his finest seasons ever. He had 11 sacks of the quarterback for minus 84 yards, returned a fumble recovery 22 yards against New Orleans [Sept. 16], and swatted down a team-high eight passes. He had a pair of two-sack games, against San Francisco (Oct. 7) and Chicago. Perhaps his most important quarterback dump of 1973 came late in the club's super-charged 15-13 victory over Los Angeles. It was a minus seven-yards play that took the Rams out of field goal range. The No. 1 pick in the 1968 draft, he climaxed his first year in the pros by being named the NFL's defensive rookie of the year. A very durable performer, he has missed only two games (out of a possible 84) since joining the pros. 7th year. Games—14 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 12 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE There were some who insisted that Humphrey was ready for professional football as early as his junior year at Tennessee State. Time and The Sporting News thought so, picking him to their respective All-America teams then and repeating the gesture a year later. He was on The Associated Press' Little All-America teams both seasons. He played in the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala., the Blue-Gray Game in Montgomery, Ala., the Coaches All-America Game and the College All-Star Game in Chicago.

PERSONAL Jade's Commanche Barchet occupies center stage of Humphrey's attention in the off-season. He has handled the dog in shows throughout the Southeast and won ribbons at virtually every stop. He also makes countless appearances at functions for underprivileged children. Full name: Claude B. Humphrey. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married, two children. Born: June 29, 1944, in Memphis, Tenn.

John James, P, 6-3, 200 As storybook-like as the way John James wound up in the NFL reads in the first place, it's really beginning to sound like high fiction now. From the shadows of obscurity to center spotlight. That's the basic outline of the tale he has woven. He came to the Falcons as a free agent, just two years after kicking a football for the first time under actual game conditions. James was so impressive in training camp in 1972, the club's incumbent, a two-time NFL punting champion, was waived He responded brilliantly as a rookie, posting a 42.8 average. In 1973, he punted 63 times for a 42.6 average, third best in the National Football Conference. He also had the longest kick of the season in the NFC, 72 yards in the season opener in New Orleans. Pro Football Weekly named him to its All-NFC second team. He made both Pro Football Weekly and Football Digest's All-NFC rookie team in 1972. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE It is well-documented how James literally came out of the University of Florida cheering section one Saturday afternoon to become the club's punter. And it happened almost that rapidly. As a senior he averaged 40.3 yards per kick but was overlooked in the 1972 draft.

PERSONAL James spent the past off-season earning his real estate license.

Tom Kelly, PK, 6-0, 180 Time really did slip up on Tom Kelly. Originally, he came to this country on a self-imposed 24-hour pass. He was going to get married the afternoon of his 1969 arrival from England and return immediately after his wedding. Five years have passed, and he's still here. The Manchester, England, native joined the Falcons in mid-April after being claimed on waivers from Minnesota. He spent 1973 on the Vikings' taxi squad after suffering a leg inqury on the fourth day of training camp.

COLLEGE After taking several pre-engineering courses at a university in England, Kelly finished his college education at Oklahoma City, Okla., University. The school had no football team, so he played semi-professionally, with the Oklahoma City Warriors. His longest field goal as a Warrior was 57 yards.

PERSONAL Kelly spent the weekends of his England youth on the soccer field. Had he not come to America, he might have become a professional in that sport. Full name: Thomas Kelly. Off-season residence: Eagan, Minn. Married, one child. Born Dec. 12, 1944, in Manchester, England.

George Kunz, T, 6-6, 268 Were all the offensive tackles in the NFL as good as George Kunz to hold a convention, they'd need less space than a telephone booth somewhere along Peachtree Street. And that's not just the opinion of one man, one football team or one franchise. That's the feelings of most of the players in the league. That was evidenced by their vote in the Newspaper Enterprise Association's annual All-Pro balloting. When all the counting was done, the Falcons' talented No. 75 was—once again—nominated to a spot on the first team. It was the third time such homage was paid the former Notre Dame star by his peers. The fact he started in his third straight Pro Bowl game speaks pretty loudly of his ability too. As does his selection to the Professional Football Writers Association and Pro Football Weekly's all-pro first teams. Extremely quick, he excels in all phases of blocking. 6th year. Games—14 in 1969, 9 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Changing jersies was about the only adjustment Kunz had to make in coming from college to the Falcons. He was ready for the pros, scouts say, from the time he first became an All-American at Notre Dame. And, on some teams, that was as a sophomore. As a junior and senior, however, he was a consensus pick on all the A-A teams. He was the Falcons' No. 1 choice in the draft of that year. He also excelled scholastically as a collegian, graduating cum laude—with a 3.4 overall grade point average. He played in the East-West Game, Coaches All-America Game, the Hula Bowl and the College All-Star Game in Chicago.

PERSONAL A gentleman farmer in the off-season, Kunz raises Appaloosa horses on his ranch in Alpharetta. He also is the television spokesman for one of Metro Atlanta's largest automobile agencies. Full name: George James Kunz. Off-season residence: Alpharetta, Ga. Married, no children. Born: July 15, 1947, in Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Returned 1 kickoff for 13 yards in 1969; recovered 1 opponents' fumble for no yards in 1969; caught 1 pass for 2 yards in 1971.

Rolland Lawrence, CB, 5-10, 179 Had there even been one in training camp, Rolland Lawrence's name would never have made it to the morning line. None of the media assigned to cover the Falcons gave him even the slightest chance of making the club. "Since he's here, so small and from Tabor University—Tabor?—and all, I guess I'd better write about him early. He'll probably be gone any day now," said one skeptical scribe. Lawrence, one of 15 children, could not possibly have heard the conversation. He acted as if he had, though, and soon became the talk of camp. He spent most of the season working on speciality teams and occasionally returning kickoffs and punts. His biggest play was an 81-yard return of an intercepted pass against San Diego. 2nd year. Games—14 in 1973.

COLLEGE They'll remember Rolland Lawrence for a long time at Tabor University, where he is regarded as the school's finest athlete of all time.

Lee

He starred in football and track at the tiny Mennonite college (student enrollment 500) in Hillsboro, Kan.

PERSONAL Sports was always a way of life for Lawrence. One of nine brothers, he wanted to go to Tabor because he felt he could play more football at a small school. Full name: Rolland Derenfro Lawrence. Off-season residence: Franklin, Pa. Single. Born: March 24, 1951 in Franklin, Pa.

Bob Lee, QB, 6-2, 201 The fortunes of the South — and more specifically, its pro football-loving serfs—did indeed rise again in 1973. And once again, one of the major rallying forces behind that climb was a general named Lee. General Robert M. Lee that is, commandant of "Lee's Legion," that arm-band-wearing platoon of fans who helped popularize banners at Atlanta Stadium. When the red-haired Californian took command of the on-field Atlanta forces, the attack was bogged down by a 1-3 record. Executing his plays with the precision of a real military chief, he soon had the Falcons very much on the offensive however. The result was seven straight victories, including a smashing 20-14 decision over the previously undefeated Minnesota Vikings. Lee, voted Falcon Player of the Year and NEA's Third Down Award winner, began the season on the bench, no thanks to an injury sustained on the last play of the first training camp scrimmage. He aggravated the injury—a bruised nerve in the elbow—a couple of times and began the season as the backup quarterback. He saw only token action in the first three games. Lee got his first start against Chicago and responded by hitting 11 of 13 passes for 181 yards and two touchdowns. His most self-satisfying game of 1973, no doubt, came against the Vikings. He was 11 of 23 passing for 171 yards and two touchdowns. He spent the first four years of his career with that club, playing out his option in 1972 and joining the Falcons in a May, 1973 trade. While with the Vikings, Lee started 11 games at quarterback and won nine of them. 6th year. Games—14 in 1969, 6 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 2 in 1972, 12 in 1973.

COLLEGE After a brilliant prep career at Lowell High in San Francisco, Calif., Lee accepted a combination football-baseball grant-in-aid to Arizona State University. He played there as a freshman and then transferred to City College of San Francisco. Upon graduation, he enrolled at the University of Pacific, where he set five school passing and punting records. Because some NFL scouts thought he might sign a major league baseball contract, Minnesota didn't choose him until the 17th round of the 1968 draft.

PERSONAL It's now Professor Robert M. Lee, if you please. He rose to that station in the past off-season when he joined the faculty at City College of San Francisco. He has a bachelor of science degree in education and a Masters degree, both from Pacific. Full name: Robert Melville Lee. Off-season residence: San Francisco, Calif. Married, no children. Born: Aug. 7, 1946, in Columbus, Ohio.

Lewis

Madeya

Mike Lewis, DT, 6-4, 261 Members of the left side of the Falcons' offensive line say playing against Mike Lewis in training camp scrimmages is akin to Marine boot camp. If you can survive that, you'll definitely be ready once the regular NFL championship season starts. That is just a sampling of respect teammates have for the shy, soft-spoken young Texan. One of the more agile defensive tackles in the league, Lewis was at his 1973 best against Detroit. He was credited with eight individual tackles, six assists, slapped down two passes and sacked the quarterback once for a loss of 10 yards. When he first reported to the Falcons as a 1971 free agent, he was a 220-pound linebacker. Coaches converted him into a defensive lineman, first stationing him at end and finally moving him to tackle. Meantime, he was put on a special weights program and soon built himself up to his present proportions. 4th year. Games—9 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE When Wiley College of Marshall, Tex., dropped football at the end of Lewis' sophomore year, there was no question that he would continue in the sport. He eventually chose Arkansas Agricultural, Mechanical and Normal College in Pine Bluff, Ark.

PERSONAL A true believer in year-around conditioning, Lewis either worked out or played a couple hours of basketball almost daily during the off-season. He has the same dedication deemed necessary to become a complete player in the NFL. Full name: Michael Henry Lewis. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Single. Born: July 14, 1949, in Houston, Tex.

John Madeya, QB, 6-4, 212 A picture-book quarterback. That was one of the more commonly used descriptions of John Madeya during his collegiate career at the University of Louisville. And in time that phrasing could possibly become vogue for him in the NFL. Coaches feel he has all the equipment to become a good professional quarterback. He spent 1973 on the inactive list. 2nd year.

COLLEGE Nobody at the University of Louisville is going to forget Johnny Unitas, but they will have to look behind the name of Madeya to find any of the old NFL passing master's records. The youngster broke most of them by completing 364 of 746 passes for 4504 yards and 34 touchdowns.

PERSONAL By nature a very quiet and private person, Madeya has always let his athletic abilities speak for him. He was a standout schoolboy athlete in McKeesport, Pa., his hometown. Full name: John Madeya. Married. Off-season residence: Louisville, Ky. Born: Sept. 13, 1951, in McKeesport, Pa.

Art Malone, RB, 6-0, 216 Pardon Art Malone if he gives you a pained expression anytime mention of 1973 is made. It was that kind of year for the rugged veteran running back from Arizona State. For the first time in his pro career, he spent an NFL season in almost as much pain as he dished out. He suffered a strained knee in the seventh game and was rendered virtually ineffective the remainder of the schedule. He spent two full games on the inactive list. Noted as a better-than-average pass receiver, he finished with 19 catches for the year for 177 yards and one touchdown. He caught five passes for 28 yards in the first game against San Francisco. Until felled by injury against the 49ers later in the year, he had 69 yards rushing on 17 carries. This was to be his best ground gaining afternoon. He had a banner season in 1972, rushing for 798 yards and gaining 585 yards more on 50 pass receptions. He was the club's second round draft choice in 1970. 5th year. Games—14 in 1970, 13 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 9 in 1973.

COLLEGE A referee's whistle signalling the end of a play was about the only sure way of stopping Malone during his football career at Arizona State. Defenses had little such success, as evidenced by his offensive figures. In three years with the Sun Devils' varsity, he harrassed enemy defenders by amassing 2549 yards rushing on 565 carries and scored 30 touchdowns. He played in the East-West Shrine All-Star Game in San Francisco and the College All-Star Game in Chicago.

PERSONAL After spending much of his early youth in the hot Arizona cotton fields, Malone discovered that one sure way out of them was through athletics. His prep football totals at Santa Cruz Valley High in Eloy, Ariz., were astronomical. He has a B.S. degree in elementary education and has some hours toward his Masters. Full name: Arthur Lee Malone. Off-season residence: Phoenix, Ariz. Married, two children. Born: March 20, 1948, in Tyler, Tex.

Rosie Manning, DT, 6-5, 255 After two seasons of apprenticeship on the Falcon taxi squad, coaches feel 1974 might just be the year Rosie Manning "arrives" as an NFL-quality defensive tackle. He opened the 1973 season as a member of the active list but was inactive the next 13 weeks. The big Texan was selected by the Falcons in the second round of the 1972 NFL players draft. 3rd year. Games—3 in 1972, 1 in 1973.

COLLEGE Northwestern Oklahoma must have thought Manning was four or five people in its 1971 game against his team, Northeastern Oklahoma. In it, he made 18 unassisted tackles and blocked a punt. He was an Associated Press and Kodak Coaches Little All-America selection as a senior.

PERSONAL Basketball was considered Manning's best sport during his prep days at Wichita Falls, Tex. He was a schoolboy All-America and turned down several basketball grants-in-aid to play football. Full name: Roosevelt Manning, Jr. Off-season residence: Wichita Falls, Tex. Married, no children. Born: May 31, 1950, in Wichita Falls, Tex.

Greg Marx, DT, 6-4, 260 In his brief NFL career, Greg Marx has surprised no one. He has been everything he was expected to be: A real talent. Early in the season, coaches toyed with the idea of having him learn tackle and end. Eventually he was settled at tackle, there to play behind starters Mike Tilleman and Mike Lewis and first reserve Chuck Walker. Marx showed the brilliance of his skill by becoming one of the most dependable members of the speciality teams. A bright future has been predicted for the former Notre Dame All-America, and he seems destined to prove the forecasters correct. 2nd year. Games—14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Marx' was a household word in 1972 among All-America selectors. He made virtually every team. The Detroit, Mich., native was an all-star in the classroom too, twice being named to the National All-America Academic squad.

PERSONAL After an all-star prep career in Detroit, Marx was literally flooded by scholarship offers. He had always wanted to play football at Notre Dame, so he went on to become one of the school's all-time performers. He graduated with a B.A. degree in psychology and hopes to eventually enter law school. Full name: Gregory Allan Marx. Married, one child. Off-season residence: South Bend, Ind. Born: July 18, 1950, in Detroit, Mich.

Henry Matthews, RB, 6-3, 212 Potentially, his coaches feel, Henry Matthews can become a more than competent NFL running back. He has the qualifications: Good size, speed and determination. He saw limited action in 1973, used primarily on the speciality teams. He was signed as a free agent after being waived by New England. 3rd year. Games—3 in 1972, 3 in 1973.

COLLEGE Matthews was overlooked in the draft of 1972 after earning three letters at Michigan State University. He was signed as a free agent by the Patriots. He majored in Social Science.

PERSONAL A real outdoors buff, Matthews likes to spend his leisure time either on a golf course or in a field somewhere hunting. Full name: John Henry Matthews, Jr. Off-season residence: Akron, Ohio. Married, one child. Born: March 17, 1949, in Akron, Ohio.

Returned 3 kickoffs for 74 yards in 1972.

Andy Maurer, G, 6-3, 255 Andy Maurer holds down two football jobs a year. He's an employe at one establishment for six months, and the boss at the other for six. His second position is that of director of the Andy Maurer Football Camp in Medford, Ore. That is where he spends almost every waking hour in the off-season. Once the bell rings for the start of an NFL season, however, he devotes the same enthusiasm and drive to playing left offensive guard for the Falcons. In mid-1973, he began splitting the position with Len Gotshalk. They were the "messengers," taking in every play from the sidelines. In 1970, his rookie season, he became a Falcon starter after beating out the incumbent left guard, a seven-year veteran. Since signing with Atlanta as its third round draft choice in 1970, Maurer has played in 56 straight games. A tough competitor, he doesn't mind playing with some pain. 5th year. Games—14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Playing in the interior line never crossed Maurer's mind as a collegian. He was too busy being a freshman and sophomore fullback, a slot back as a junior and tight end as a senior. He led the Ducks in receiving as a senior with 22 receptions.

PERSONAL Eleven man football was a new experience for Maurer when he got to the University of Oregon. His hometown high school (Prospect, Ore.) was so small it could only field an eight-man team. Despite the enrollment and the "new" football, he was nevertheless named to Oregon's all-state eleven man team as a senior. Full name: Andrew Lee Maurer. Off-season residence: Medford, Ore. Married, two children. Born: Sept. 30, 1948, in Silverton, Ore.

Larry Mialik, TE, 6-1, 226 The crisp blocking talent of Larry Mialik was very much on display in 1973. On key close-yardage situations, the tough young New Jersey native was always hurried into the lineup. He wants to play and works very hard in every practice, hoping to earn more game action. He caught two passes in 1973 for 30 yards. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE A broken arm curtailed Mialik's collegiate career at the University of Wisconsin, but by then he had already caught the eye of some pro scouts. He had a big junior season for the Badgers, leading the club with 33 receptions for 702 yards and being named to the Big Ten all-star team. He had 15 catches at the time of his injury a year later.

PERSONAL Mialik's reputation as a hard worker and his dedication to football, especially, is an old story. He played all sports with vigor during his schoolboy days at Passaic, N. J. Full name: Larry Mialik. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married. Born: May 15, 1950, in Passaic, N. J.

Recovered 1 opponents' fumble for no gain in 1972; recovered 1 opponents' fumble for no gain in 1973.

Nick Mike-Mayer, PK, 5-8, 180 Nick Mike-Mayer, by his own admission, got a bigger kick out of training camp than the Falcons got from him. "I sometimes have an eating problem," says the young Hungarian, born in Bologna, Italy, but an American citizen since his teens. "I gained too much weight (12 pounds) because of all the good food at the training table and it resulted in me slightly hurting my leg." Once he parred down, however, his leg got well and he became one of the most prolific rookie scorers in NFL history. The highpoint of his infant career came Nov. 4 when his five field goals helped the Falcons to a stunning 15-13 victory over Los Angeles. After the Rams had taken a 10-0 lead, he booted fielders of 28, 30, 12 and 26 yards to move the club to within one point of the lead. Then, with 54 seconds remaining, he calmly kicked a 16 yarder to send Atlanta into ecstasy with one of the greatest victories in its eight-year NFL history. He broke several club records including longest field goal—a 52-yard effort against San Francisco on Oct. 28—and most points (15) scored in one game. 2nd year. Games—14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Throughout his career at Temple University, Mike-Mayer was regarded as one of the country's leading placement specialists. As a senior, he hit on 13 of 20 field goals and was 24 of 26 on points after touchdown.

PERSONAL Football, American style, did not become a real part of Mike-Mayer's life until his junior year in prep school. Until then he really didn't know the sport. He was, however, well versed in another form of football. His father was a world-famed Hungarian soccer star who moved his family to America in 1964. Two other Mike-Mayers are currently making names for themselves as collegiate kickers. Steve, who had a 54-yard field goal in early 1973, is a junior at the University of Maryland. Frank, oldest of the three, is a sophomore at Temple University. Full name: Nicholas Mike-Mayer. Off-season residence: Lansdowne, Pa. Married, no children. Born: March 1, 1950, in Bologna, Italy.

Jim Miller, G, 6-3, 240 If hard work ever pays Jim Miller its dividends, the determined young Iowan should be greatly rewarded. After countless hours in the Falcons' weight program last off season, trying to rehabilitate a knee that was operated on early in 1972, he still wasn't able to answer the starting bell in 1973. In fact, he spent the entire year on injured reserve. After failing his physical in training camp, Miller, who joined the club in 1971 as a free agent, underwent corrective knee surgery. If healthy in 1974, he could see a lot of action. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1971, 2 in 1972.

COLLEGE At 220, Miller was one of the lightest—but toughest—tackles in the Big Ten throughout his career at the University of Iowa. He was a three-year starter, working two seasons at right tackle and one at left.

PERSONAL A two-sport star at Regina High School in Iowa City, Iowa, Miller could have attended college on either a football or basketball grant. Full name: James Robert Miller. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Single. Born: July 24, 1949, in Iowa City, Iowa.

Jim Mitchell, TE, 6-1, 236 The season of 1973 was a real winning one for Jim Mitchell. He led the club in receiving with 32 receptions for 420 yards, an average of 13.1 per catch. His biggest game, reception wise, came against New Orleans in the seasonal opener. In that game, he caught seven passes for 104 yards. 6th year. Games—14 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 13 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Mitchell was literally a star from the very first day of his collegiate career at Prairie View A&M. He was voted the Southwestern Athletic Conference's rookie of the year in 1965 and made the all-star team four straight seasons. As a senior he was voted the best all-around player in the league.

PERSONAL The past off-season found Mitchell enjoying banker's hours. Really. He worked with a bank in downtown Atlanta. Full name: James Robert Mitchell. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married, one child. Born: Oct. 19, 1947, in Shelbyville, Tenn.

Ken Mitchell, LB, 6-2, 224 There is, apparently, nothing athletically impossible as far as Ken Mitchell is concerned. Especially when the sport is football. He has proved that since joining the Falcons two seasons ago. He didn't even start playing the game until he was a junior at Pierce Junior College. After one season he dropped out of school and joined the Marine Corps. He was discharged a year later, however, due to a shoulder ailment and enrolled at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. He played there as a junior, but was declared ineligible for his senior football season. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle then stepped into Mitchell's young football life, putting him "up for grabs" following the 1972 draft. The Falcons claimed the young Californian and signed him as a free agent. He spent 1972 on the taxi squad, but made the team last season as a backup linebacker and speciality team man. 2nd year. Games—12 in 1973.

COLLEGE Mitchell really made good use of his limited collegiate playing time, attracting professional scouts because of his hustle and great desire.

PERSONAL Front lawn and neighborhood "pick-up games" was the limit of Mitchell's sports participation during his Inglewood, Calif., youth. He was interested in prep school sports, he says, but not enough to compete. Full name: Kenneth Wayne Mitchell. Off-season residence: Las Vegas, Nev. Single. Born: Nov. 14, 1948, in Inglewood, Calif.

Nobis

Louis Neal, WR, 6-4, 215 Louis Neal joined the Falcons after being waived by Oakland. The Raiders had made him their fifth round choice in the 1973 NFL players draft. Neal, a tight end and wide receiver in college, scored his first professional touchdown against the Jets in New York. It came on a 48-yard pass from quarterback Bob Lee. Injuries to Ken Burrow and Al Dodd in mid-season, moved the big Californian into the starting lineup. 2nd year. Games—10 in 1973.

COLLEGE Grambling College will have a hard time forgetting Neal. Especially after his game against that Louisiana school in 1971. In it, he caught eight passes for 142 yards. That season, incidentally, he averaged 22.3 yards per catch.

PERSONAL Neal was all-league in three sports during his prep career at Woodrow Wilson High in San Francisco, Calif. He was a stalwart, two-way performer in football, making All-San Francisco prep as both a strong safety and end. Full name: Louis Charles Neal. Off-season residence: San Francisco, Calif. Single. Born: Jan. 10, 1951, in San Francisco, Calif.

Tommy Nobis, LB, 6-3, 243 In total jest, Tommy Nobis insisted in early 1973 that he had found a loophole in one of the NFL's newest edicts. The one saying a $100 fine would be levied against anyone throwing a football into the stands. Unfortunately, he didn't get a chance to test the validity of his idea. "If I'm fortunate enough to intercept a pass or advance a fumble for a touchdown," he joked, "I'm going to beat the fine by punting the ball into the stands. The rule doesn't say anything about kicking it." Unfortunately, he didn't score, but he certainly had a lot to do with preventing others from doing it. Ask the Minnesota Vikings, for instance. During a late drive that had touchdown written all over it, it was Mr. Nobis who stymied the advance with a jarring, fumble-producing tackle. He alertly fell on the loose ball, then, to officially help seal the Vikings' doom and preserve a tremendous 20-14 Falcon victory. Typical of his career, the big Texan had many big plays in 1973, but none was more dramatic than that one. Since becoming the Falcons' No. 1 draft choice in 1966, he has won numerous honors. Among them are: All-Pro in 1967; the Bert Bell Award as the most valuable rookie in the NFL in 1966; Professional Football Writers Association and The Sporting News rookie of the year, 1966; played in the Pro Bowl five times, and, Falcon Player of the Year, 1966 and 1968. 9th year. Games—14 in 1966, 14 in 1967, 14 in 1968, 5 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 4 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE His parents needed a den and parts of two bedrooms to house all the awards Nobis won during his legendary career at the University of Texas. He was twice a consensus All-America and won both the prestigious Maxwell and Outland awards, symbolic of the most outstanding lineman in college football, as a senior.

PERSONAL A tireless worker on behalf of exceptional children, Nobis spent almost every waking hour during the past off season preparing and presenting his annual Super Sports Telethon, seen in April over a local Atlanta TV station. Proceeds from this yearly endeavor go to help provide all kinds of recreational experiences for these children. Full name: Thomas Henry Nobis, Jr. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married, two children. Born: Sept. 20, 1943, in San Antonio, Tex.

Tony Plummer, S, 5-11, 190

Fear is not only abstract, as far as Tony Plummer is concerned, it is an emotion that doesn't even exist. He shows that every time the Falcons play. And because of the pell-mell manner in which he played as a member of the 1973 speciality teams, the Atlanta media nicknamed him "Kamikaze." He was at his best putting heavy pressure on opposing punters and placement specialists. Anytime one of the top four defensive backs was sidelined, Plummer, as the fifth man at that position, made sure his presence was felt. He was always around the football and usually near the bottom of the pileup. He was acquired from COLLEGE A graduate of California's outstanding junior college program, Plummer played as a freshman and sophomore at College of San Mateo, Calif. In his final two seasons, he played at the University of Pacific.

PERSONAL The go-go-go style Plummer displays in football switched sports during the past off-season. He was the ever-hustling coach and playmaker for the Falcons basketball team. Eddie Ray, RB, 6-2, 235 When the role was called last July for the start of the Falcons' 1973 training camp, there was no answer from Eddie Ray. The one-time Louisiana State star wasn't there the next day either. Or the next, and so on. Finally, after three weeks of extensive searching, a friend of Director of Player Personnel Tom Braatz found the big running back on a golf course in Baton Rouge, La. The true wisdom of the Falcons' insistence that Ray be found and returned to the fold flowered in the eighth game of the season. He was the first person called when regular running back Art Malone sustained a sprained knee against San Francisco, there. And he responded beautifully. "I thought I'd probably be waived eventually—since the fellow I assumed would be ahead of me anyway (Ray Lamb) had been waived during the off season," Ray said later, explaining his training camp tardiness. "So, I figured I'd be wasting my time and the club's too by even reporting to Greenville (S. C.)" He scored 11 touchdowns in 1973, a new club record. His nine TDs rushing also was a record. His best rushing games were against Philadelphia, 71 yards and two touchdowns; New York Jets, 76 yards and two TDs, and Minnesota, 61 yards. Before becoming a starter, Ray already had more rushing attempts and yards gained than his entire three-year totals in the NFL. 5th year. Games—5 in 1970, 4 in 1971, 7 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Ray, a bullish-running, All-SEC fullback and punter for Louisiana State University, was regarded as one of the finest pro prospects in the country in 1970. The Patriots, who then called Boston home, thought so too, drafting him in the fourth round.

PERSONAL A natural athlete, Ray is one of the best golfers in professional football. He has given some thought to the possibility of turning pro when his playing days are over. Although he did not take up the sport until his sophomore year in college, he is a scratch golfer. Full name: Edward B. Ray. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Single. Born: April 5, 1947, in Vicksburg, Miss.

Ken Reaves, CB, 6-3, 209 As chairman of the board of the Falcons secondary, Ken Reaves should have been a leading candidate in 1973 for executive of the year honors. With the aplomb of a polished and well-heeled mogul, he led Atlanta's deep defenders to the richest season in the club's history. To wit: The secondary shaved 274 yards off the net yards gained passing figures of 1972 (from 1704 down to 1430). It also trimmed 292 yards off the total yards gained passing against the Falcons (1911 in 1972 down to 1619). And Reaves, through his play and knowledge of enemy offenses that he shared freely with teammates, was one of the prime reasons for the improvement. Unofficially, the one-time Norfolk State star led the secondary in tackles. He also increased by two his career interceptions total (29). In addition, he stretched to 112 the number of consecutive games—every one since the club's inception, in fact—he has played as a Falcon. This is a team record. Both of his 1973 interceptions, incidentally, came against New Orleans. In the season opener, he went 11 yards with his steal. On the final day of the season, he carried back a Saints interception nine yards. 9th year. Games—14 in 1966, 14 in 1967, 14 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

Preston Riley, WR, 6-1, 190 A proven NFL receiver, all Preston Riley wants now is another chance. And the Falcons have promised him just that in 1974. He was out of football most of last season, being waived by New Orleans after the first game of the 1973 schedule. The one-time Memphis State star was the ninth round draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers in 1970. It was against the Falcons in 1972 that Riley caught the lone touchdown pass of his career. The play covered 28 yards. His first-ever reception in the NFL was a 68-yard pitch from 49ers quarterback John Brodie. He was traded to the Saints in April, 1973 for a future draft choice. 5th year. Games—14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 1 in 1973.

COLLEGE His 4.6 speed in the 40 literally ran Riley out of the Memphis State defensive secondary in his junior year. He wound up at flanker and became one of the nation's finest. He also was a quarter miler in track.

PERSONAL Sports—period—was Riley's bailiwick as a schoolboy star at Culkin Academy in Vicksburg, Miss. He was all-state in football, all-district in basketball and state mile and half-mile champion in track. Full name: Preston Troy Riley. Off-season residence: San Francisco, Calif. Married, one child. Bill Sandeman, T, 6-6, 265 Bill Sandeman spent most of 1973 exposing the belief that a person's productivity really suffers once he reaches the threshold of pain as nothing but a big, bruised myth. Seldom was there a Monday through Saturday he didn't feel a lot of pain. Yet he used his football Sundays to dish it out, especially that frosty November afternoon in Philadelphia. There he threw two dynamite blocks that enabled running back Eddie Ray to easily score twice en route to breaking the game wide open. It was, many feel, the best game of his career. Despite the fact he was plagued by an aching knee throughout the season, Sandeman didn't miss a game. He was claimed by the Falcons on waivers from New Orleans in early 1967. He wasn't drafted in 1966, but was later signed by Dallas as a free agent. 9th year. Games—8 in 1966, 13 in 1967 (New Orleans 2 Atlanta 11), 4 in 1968, 13 in 1969, 6 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Once while at San Joaquin Delta Junior College, Sandeman decided to literally dunk his football career. After one day on the school's water polo team, however, he returned to football. Upon his graduation, he received a full grant-in-aid to the University of Pacific.

PERSONAL A championship-quality swimmer since grade school, Sandeman spends much of his off-season in the water. When not diving for abalone—which is his customary December-to-June vocation, he enjoys underwater photography. He has a B.S. degree in education. Full name:

William Stewart Sandeman. Off-season residence: San Diego, Calif. Married, two children. Born: Nov. 30, 1942, in Providence, R. I.

Returned 1 kickoff for no yards in 1967.

Henry Sovio, TE, 6-3, 234 Just when coaches felt Henry Sovio was about to make his move and become an integral part of the 1973 Falcons, he suffered a strained Achilles tendon in training camp. Once recovered from that, he was far behind the rest of his teammates but still showed enough promise to make the taxi squad. Then, he got hurt again, fracturing the navicular bone in his left wrist, and finished the season on injured reserve. 3rd year.

COLLEGE With 36 passes for 527 yards, Sovio was one of collegiate America's leading pass receivers in his senior year at the University of Hawaii.

PERSONAL Sovio was all-state in four sports during his prep career at Queen Elizabeth High School in Surrey, B. C. He starred in football as a receiver, was a center in basketball, a pitcher in baseball and threw the shot putt in track and field. Full name: Henry Peter Sovio. Off-season residence: White Rock, B.C., Canada. Married. Born: April 15, 1949, in Rauma, Finland.

Chris Stecher, DT, 6-6, 268 Chris Stecher will have a reunion of sorts in 1974. He will be returning to his first football love, defense. He was away from that area of the game in 1973, having been moved by the coaches to offense. A defensive tackle throughout college, he was among the last group of players waived in training camp. He was later recalled, however, and signed as a future. Afterwards he spent the balance of the season on the inactive list. He was the Falcons' 13th round draft choice in 1973. 2nd year.

COLLEGE Stecher was named to the All-Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and NAIA District III All-Star Teams in each of his four years with the Claremont-Mudd varsity.

PERSONAL A German Literature major in college, Stecher graduated in the top five per cent of his class. Full name: Christopher John Stecher. Off-season residence: Los Angeles, Calif. Born: Oct. 7, 1951, in St. Louis, Mo.

Pat Sullivan, QB, 6-0, 201 Although his 1973 playing time was limited, Pat Sullivan proved his potential is unlimited. Thrown into action for the first time against Chicago, for instance, he completed six of seven passes for 76 yards. The determined young man from Auburn, 1971 Heisman Trophy winner, threw the first touchdown pass of his career against Philadelphia. It was a 21-yard strike to wide receiver Ken Burrow. The Falcons' second pick in the 1972 draft, he spent part of early season 1973 on the inactive list. 3rd year. Games—14 in 1972, 4 in 1973.

COLLEGE Sullivan is a legend at Auburn University, and rightly so. His career touchdown responsibility of 71 ties an NCAA record. His 53 career touchdown passes ranks him third in collegiate history in that category. He sparkled in both the Senior Bowl Game in Mobile, Ala., and the College All-Star Game in Chicago and was voted the most valuable player in each.

PERSONAL The spotlight has been centered on Pat Sullivan, athlete, ever since his prep days at John Carroll High in Birmingham, Ala. He was all-state in three sports: Football, basketball and baseball. Full name: Patrick Joseph Sullivan, Sr. Off-season residence: Birmingham, Ala. Married, three children. Born: Jan. 18, 1950, in Birmingham, Ala.

Tilleman

Van Note

Mike Tilleman, DT, 6-7, 278 Mike Tilleman saw double in 1973. Double team blocking, that is. Seldom was he afforded the opportunity to go one-on-one with any opposing lineman. Nonetheless, the big Montanan was, unofficially, the front four's leading tackler. He finished third in sacks of the quarterback with six, with two in the club's sensational 15-13 victory over Los Angeles. Two years ago, while at Houston, he led the NFL in sacks with 14. He was drafted by Minnesota as a 1964 "future" out of the University of Montana. He spent one season as a member of the Vikings' taxi squad and one on the active 40-man roster. He was claimed by New Orleans in the expansion draft of 1967. With the Saints, he was a four-year starter before being traded to Houston in 1971. He missed the first game of 1973 due to a knee injury sustained in training camp. 9th year. Games—12 in 1966, 14 in 1967, 14 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 13 in 1973.

COLLEGE Tilleman really knows the route to All-America acclaim. He traveled it during his career at the University of Montana. He made some A-A third teams as a sophomore, became a second teamer as a junior and then was named to almost all of them as a senior.

PERSONAL Known for his tremendous wit, Tilleman was at his best in training camp. It was there that he treated the media and teammates to stories of some of his favorite pets: The legendary Simple Simon, a turtle; Peter Punkin, a pesky rabbit, and Sandy, an 85-pound Labrador Retriever that personally reduced the population of chickens on Tilleman's mother's ranch from 30 to five. Mike has a B.S. degree in business administration. Full name: Michael John Tilleman. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Married, two children. Born: March 20, 1944, in Chinook, Mont.

Jeff Van Note, C, 6-2, 247 Were an artist ever commissioned to put on canvas what "the professional football player" is supposed to look like, the model would have to be center Jeff Van Note. The rugged Kentuckian brings to his position the toughness you'd expect from THE player too. That is why he has become one of the best centers in the National Football League. His coaches are on record as saying they feel there is none better. He continually grades high game after game. Until he joined the Falcons, the ex-University of Kentucky star had never played center. He was a running back in high school and was a two-time All-SEC defensive end-linebacker for the Wildcats. He was sent by the Falcons to Huntsville, Ala., then of the old Continental Football Conference, in 1969 to develop his skills. He returned in 1970, won the No. 1 job and has been there ever since. 6th year. Games—1 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Despite an all-star career at Kentucky, Van Note was not selected until the 11th round of the 1969 NFL players draft. He really caught the Falcons' eyes during the Blue-Gray Game in Montgomery, Ala.

PERSONAL Football and baseball were Van Note's elite sports as a schoolboy at St. Joseph's High in Bardstown, Ky. And he excelled at both, being voted all-state honors as a senior. He has a B.A. degree in history and political science. Full name: Jeffrey Aloysis Van Note. Off-season residence: Louisville, Ky. Married, two children. Born: Feb. 7, 1946, in South Orange, N. J.

Harmon Wages, RB, 6-1, 212

A Falcon since 1968, Harmon Wages enjoyed one of the biggest days of his career in New Orleans in 1969. On that afternoon, he ran for one touchdown, passed 66 yards for another and then caught an 88-yard scoring play for a third. He was signed as a free agent. 6th year. Games—13 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 13 in 1970, 14 1971, 8 in 1973.

COLLEGE Wages spent his college career as Florida's No. 2 quarterback. It wasn't really that ego deflating though, since the man ahead of him (Steve Spurrier) became the 1967 Heisman Trophy winner. The Jacksonville, Fla., native lettered three seasons with the Gators and played in two post-season bowl games, the Sugar in 1966 and the Orange in 1967.

PERSONAL The past off-season was super busy, once again, for Wages. When not making personal appearances around the Southeast, he was involved in taping television commercials. Full name: Harmon Leon Wages. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Single. Born: May 18, 1948, in Jacksonville, Fla.

Chuck Walker, DT, 6-3, 261 If you're a quarterback and Chuck Walker ever starts chasing you, climb a tree. That's one sure way of eluding him. "I'm afraid of heights," admits the burly 11-year veteran from Duke University. "That's why I was in charge of all the ground work and my partner climbed the trees." He used to operate a tree surgeon business in St. Louis during the off-season with Cardinals' defensive end Ron Yankowski. He proved an invaluable asset to the 1973 Falcons, occasionally spelling both starting tackles, Mike Tilleman and Mike Lewis, and doing it with class and much ability. A Pro Bowl participant in 1966, Walker was claimed by St. Louis as a "future" in the 12th round of the 1963 draft. He was a junior All-Atlantic Coast Conference tackle at Duke at the time. He was obtained by the Falcons from the Cardinals in a trade. 11th year. Games—3 in 1964, 14 in 1965, 14 in 1966, 13 in 1967, 14 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 11 in 1970, 11 in 1971, 11 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Walker is one of the few players in the NFL to have received a Masters degree. He took it in education and history at Duke in 1966. He has a bachelor of arts degree in political science.

PERSONAL A quiet, articulate man, Walker played the trumpet in his high school band before being coaxed into football by his head coach as a sophomore. Full name: Charles David Walker. Off-season residence: St. Louis, Mo. Married. Born: Aug. 10, 1941, in Uniontown, Pa.

Lonnie Warwick, LB, 6-3, 240 Aside from being one of the most knowledgeable football men on the Falcons' roster in 1973, Lonnie Warwick also proved to be one of the most infectious. His enthusiasm and spirit, ablaze from the very first day of training camp, touched everybody. When not filling in for a regular or leading the speciality teams, he was the most mobile person you ever saw along the sidelines. He must have walked 40 miles, at least, up and down the chalk lines, yelling encouragement to the offense as well as the defense. Warwick, who grew up in the coal fields of West Virginia, was passed over in the 1964 draft, but signed as a free agent with Minnesota. He was the Vikings' starting middle linebacker from 1965 until being felled by knee and leg injuries in 1971. He played out his option there in 1972. 10th year. Games—14 in 1965, 12 in 1966, 14 in 1967, 14 in 1968, 14 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 4 in 1971, 6 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE Warwick, an all-state footballer at Mount Hope, W. Va. High, signed a grant-in-aid with the University of Tennessee upon graduation. He played freshman football for the Baby Vols and then transferred to Tennessee Tech.

PERSONAL While the opinion Warwick will someday make a tremendous coach is almost unanimous among his teammates, he insist he wants no part of that scene right now. Full name: Lonnie Preston Warwick. Off-season residence: Maryville, Tenn. Single. Born: Feb. 26, 1942, in Mount Hope, W. Va.

Returned 1 punt for 10 yards and a touchdown in 1965; fumbled once in 1967; recovered 2 opponents' fumbles in 1969; recovered 1 opponents' fumble in 1973.

Joe Washington, RB, 5-9, 180 Joe Washington, somebody said in preseason 1973, "runs like a little water bug. He literally just scoots along when he runs, like a bug scooting across the water." The swift, 5-7, 180-pound running back earned that bit of praise after the Falcons obtained him in a straight cash deal with Miami. The Dolphins had signed him as a free agent. He spent part of the year on the taxi squad, but soon earned playing time returning kickoffs. 2nd year. Games—9 in 1973.

COLLEGE Washington teamed with fellow running back Ron Bell in 1972 to help Illinois State to one of the finest football seasons [8-3] in its history.

PERSONAL One of the real fashion plates on the team, Washington could always be counted upon to unfurl at least a new hat on every road trip

John Zook, DE, 6-5, 248 Traffic leading to the soapbox from which people have long sounded the praises of John Zook reached its heaviest peak in 1973. Fellow defensive end Claude Humphrey was among the more vocal speakers. And, apparently, his words reached, at last, the ears of some all-pro voting folks. Shortly after the final game of 1973, Humphrey said: "John has had a great season, people; an outstanding season. He deserves to be all-pro. It will be a shame if he doesn't make it." Zook did make some all-pro second teams, but his real signal honor came when he was selected to play in his first Pro Bowl. Long recognized as one of the NFL's most consistent performers, Zook was at his all-time best in 1973. He finished second on the team in sacks of the quarterback with nine for minus 64 yards and was unofficially credited with batting down six passes. His best game, as far as dogging and then dropping the enemy quarterback is concerned, was against Chicago. He dumped Bears quarterbacks three times for minus 22 yards. He had two sacks against New Orleans in the first game of the year. Zook's name was on the roster of two NFL clubs before he finally wound up in Atlanta. Drafted in the fourth round in 1969 by Los Angeles, he was soon afterwards traded to Philadelphia. Almost before he even got to see an Eagles jersey, he was traveling again. This time, he was Atlanta bound in a trade involving four other people. 6th year. Games—14 in 1969, 14 in 1970, 14 in 1971, 14 in 1972, 14 in 1973.

COLLEGE All-America citations arrived almost daily after Zook's senior football year at the University of Kansas. He made virtually every team, including those of The Associated Press, United Press International, Look, Coaches and The New York Daily News. He was the Big Eight Conference's lineman of the year in 1968.

Zook makes big stop en route to great win over Vikings.

PERSONAL Unless somebody near him happens to have a mobile telephone in their tackle box, it is often next to impossible to find Zook during the off-season. After a usual morning workout at Atlanta Stadium, he's off to some lake or stream for a little fishing. Full name: John Eldon Zook. Off-season residence: Atlanta. Single. Born: Sept. 24, 1947, in Garden City, Kan.

1974 DRAFT CHOICES

1 Traded choice and quarterback Bob Berry to Minnesota for veterans Bob Lee, a quarterback, and linebacker Lonnie Warwick.

2 Gerald Tinker, WR, 5-9, 170 Speed afoot is a trait that literally runs in Gerald Tinker's family. His dad, for instance, used to run track throughout Europe during World War I. His sister, Joyce, was heralded as the fastest girl in the world when she was only 12 years old. And in 1972 Gerald himself got into the running act, winning a Gold Medal at the 1972 Olympic Games as a member of America's 400-meter relay team. He has blazing speed, having tied at 9.1 the old world record for the 100-yard dash. In two varsity football seasons at Kent State University, he caught 47 passes for 752 yards and three touchdowns. As a senior, he had 35 receptions for 602 yards. His best individual game came as a senior against Ohio University. In it, he caught five passes for 123 yards. He played two seasons at Memphis State University before transferring. Full name: Gerald Alexander Tinker. Single. Born: Jan. 19, 1951, in Miami, Fla.

3 Kim McQuilken, QB, 6-2, 203 He wasn't in the center of it until he was a senior at Lehigh, but Kim McQuilken was in the spotlight as one of small college America's top quarterbacks for three seasons. The strong-armed youngster completed 516 of 927 passes for 6996 yards and 37 touchdowns during his career. His 1973 number of completions (196), yardage gained (2603), touchdown passes (19) and completion percentage (60.1) led the NCAA's Division II. Full name: Kim Evan McQuilken. Married, one child. Born: Feb. 26, 1951, in Allentown, Pa.

3 Maurice Spencer, DB, 6-0, 175 A real ballhawk, Maurice Spencer averaged seven pass interceptions a year during his career at North Carolina Central. He had nine as a freshman, six as a sophomore, nine again as a junior and five in his senior year. Also a punt return specialist of note, he was 10th in the nation in that department as a sophomore. That season he returned 15 for an average of 18.7 per. A pre-dental student, Spencer was one of the key ringleaders in Central's rise to the 1973 Mid-Eastern Atlantic Conference championship. Full name: Thurmon Maurice Spencer. Single. Born: June 15, 1952, in Winston-Salem, N. C.

4 Vince Kendrick, RB, 6-0, 223 The foundation of Vince Kendrick's University of Florida reputation was built on his explosive blocking talent. Yet, he still found time to become the Gators' seventh all-time rushing leader. In three seasons, he carried the football 279 times and gained 1269 yards. He was especially busy as a senior, blocking and running his way to all-star acclaim. As a 1973 runner, he ended with 127 rushes for 542 yards, an average of 4.3 per, and scored five touchdowns. Full name: Vincent Kendrick. Single. Born: March 18, 1952, in Miami, Fla.

5 Henry Childs, TE, 6-2, 223 The first touch of Georgia flavoring to Atlanta's 1974 draft came when tight end Henry Childs became a Falcon selection. He is a native of Thomasville. After the career he had at Kansas State, the State of Kansas surely feels he's one of its own too. In three varsity seasons with the Wildcats, he caught 94 passes for 1349 yards and 10 touchdowns. His five scoring receptions in 1972 is an all-time school record. Full name: Henry Childs. Single. Born: April 16, 1951, in Thomasville, Ga.

5 Monroe Eley, RB, 6-2, 210 After a blazing sophomore season at Arizona State University, Monroe Eley dropped out of school and headed for Canada. Once over the border, he began plying his all-star talents for the Vancouver Lions. In two seasons there, he rushed for 1132 yards—a 4.2 per carry average—and caught 37 passes for 631 more. He gained 728 yards rushing as a college sophomore and won the most valuable player award when the Sun Devils played North Carolina in the 1970 Peach Bowl in Atlanta. Full name: Monroe Eley. Single. Born: April 17, 1949, in Nashville, N. C.

6 Doyle Orange, RB, 5-10, 201 Doyle Orange signed with Toronto of the Canadian Football League.

7 James Coode, T, 6-4, 247 Upon hearing he had been selected by the Falcons in the 1974 draft, James Coode took a long look at himself. And then he said: "I know what I'll have to do, if I hope to make it. I'll have to work hard this summer on pass protection blocking. I just hope this won't be a liability." The level-headed young Ohioan didn't have to pass block much at Michigan, which is basically a running team. Full name: James Edward Coode. Single. Born: Oct. 22, 1951, in Cleveland, Ohio.

8 Choice to Green Bay through New Orleans.

9 Larry Bailey, DT, 6-4, 238 Hyperactive is the best single word one can use to describe the 1973 football nature of Larry Bailey. And he was just that for the University of Pacific varsity. He led the club with 60 unassisted tackles, had 26 assists, nine sacks of the quarterback, three fumble recoveries and six pass deflections. He was the Defensive Player of the Year in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Full name: Larry Bailey. Single. Born: May 10, 1952, in San Mateo, Calif.

10 Paul Ryczek, C, 6-2, 230 Despite missing three games in 1973 due to an elbow injury, Paul Ryczek was still considered one of the Atlantic Coast Conference's premier talents. He was named to the league's all-star team two seasons. An older brother, Dan, is a member of the Washington Redskins. Full name: Paul Andrew Ryczek. Single. Born: June 25, 1952, in Mentor, Ohio.

11 Eddie Wilson, WR, 5-11, 80 Defense was the name of Eddie Wilson's game as a 1973 senior at Albany State. And he didn't let people forget it, proving to be a hard-nosed tackler and superb pass thief. He had nine interceptions for the year for 90 yards. He was a wide receiver in his first three varsity seasons. Full name: Eddie Lee Wilson. Single. Born: Jan. 31, 1950, in Monticello, Fla.

12 Vic Koegel, LB, 6-0, 218 At offensive-minded Ohio State, Vic Koegel was considered a real defensive gem. As the Buckeyes' starting middle linebacker for three seasons, he was one of the club's leading tacklers in 1973 with 96 individual stops. He was the leader in that category as a sophomore with 126. Full name: Victor Aloysius Koegel. Single. Born: Nov. 2, 1952, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

13 Ralph Powell, RB, 6-0, 221 When Nebraska needed "the big yard" in 1973, the Cornhuskers knew they needed only to call Ralph Powell's number. He was thrown for only one loss (three yards). He ended the year with 259 yards gained, an average of 5.3 per carry. Full name: Ralph Powell. Single. Born: Feb. 28, 1951, in Detroit, Mich.

14 John Givens, G, 6-3, 240 Projected as an offensive guard in the pros, John Givens hasn't blocked anybody from the line of scrimmage since his prep days. He was a three-year starter at defensive tackle for Villanova, annually leading the team in individual tackles and assists. Full name: John Donald Givens, Jr. Single. Born: Feb. 19, 1952, in Darby, Pa.

15 Willie Jones, WR, 5-10, 175 Another Georgian who found collegiate glory outside his home state, Willie Jones was the hit of Iowa State football for three seasons. During his career there, he caught 78 passes for 1392 yards and 12 touchdowns. Full name: Willie Jones, Jr. Married, three children. Born: July 13, 1951, in Valdosta, Ga.

16 Sylvester McGee, RB, 5-0, 184 The University of Massachusetts may remember Sylvester McGee as long as his own school, Rhode Island, does. He rushed for 163 yards against the Minutemen last season as his Rams captured second place in the tough Yankee Conference. He gained 768 for the year. Full name: Sylvester McGee. Single. Born: Aug. 26, 1952, in Haverstraw, N. Y.

17 Al Davis, G-T, 6-3, 248 Boise State led Division II of the NCAA in total offense per game because of people like Al Davis. Led by his steady blocking, the Broncos went 10-3 for the year and averaged 466.3 yards per game. Full name: Alvin Woodrow Davis. Single. Born: Dec. 2, 1951, in Richmond, Calif.

FREE AGENTS

East of Hillsboro, Kan., nobody—save his parents and friends—had ever heard of Rolland Lawrence in mid-July of 1973. And certainly not the Atlanta Falcons. Not until he came to training camp as an almost unannounced free agent, that is. Little fanfare was made of the diminutive 5-10, 176-pound cornerback when he signed. By mid-training camp, however, everybody knew him. He made himself known through his hustle, determination and hard-hitting. Several people who contributed heavily to the success of the 1973 Falcons were free agents of other years. John James, for one. And Mike Lewis. Quite possibly some of the following, appearing here in brief sketches, will make it in 1974. (These free agents were signed as of June 20, 1974.)

Richard Byas passed his "screen test" with the Falcons and was signed. The club borrowed a film on him, found him impressive and decided to give him a chance to return punts and kickoffs. . . . R. A. Coppedge was a highly-sought free agent. He is considered a capable punter as well as a good placements man. . . . There was a bit of a foot race to sign Rick Danmeier. Several clubs tried to get the steady placekicker-punter under contract. . . . The tag "sleeper" has been placed on James Davis. The Falcons feel his height, desire and hustle are three big things he has going for him in his drive to make it in the NFL. . . . A weights program has been prescribed for Barry Dotzauer, a youngster the Falcons think could make it in professional football. A lack of weight is one reason he wasn't drafted. . . . Toughness is said to be one of Paul Gabel's greatest football virtues. He will be tried at offensive guard and tackle with the Falcons. . . . Cliff Greenfield was considered among the very top free agent prospects in the country. He has the size and apparent determination to make it. . . . Al Helgemo, scouts say, has all the ingredients necessary to play in the NFL: Size, speed and savvy. . . . A fine, sure-handed tackler, Rudy Holmes will get a two-way shot. He will be tried at cornerback and as a kick returner. . . . Greg Ingram, who played flanker as a 1973 senior, will be returned to defense by the Falcons. . . . After his freshman year at the University of Georgia, Herb Malone transferred to Livingston, Ala., State and found his niche as one of America's best small college linemen. . . . It will be a whole new sports world for Dudley Morton in 1974, but team officials feel he will adapt well. The only football he has ever played was as a prepster at Atlanta's Turner High. He was an all-star basketball center in college. . . . A three-year starter at Yankton College, John Nielsen earned recognition as one of the best small college linemen in the country . . . There is a Falcon in his family's past and he hopes one in its future. Ron Simmons, whose brother Jerry was once an Atlanta receiver, will be given a shot at cornerback . . . Gregg Trebnick has been compared favorably with former Green Bay star receiver Boyd Dowler. He is said to be on the same physical build, have the same speed and the same strides as Dowler had . . . . Off a fine comeback in his senior season, club officials have said Godfrey White will get a good look as a halfback in 1974. He missed all of his junior year due to injuries.

Game-by-Game Review of 1973

Atlanta 62, New Orleans 7

Tulane Stadium, 66,428

Both the Saints and the record book took a beating in Atlanta's opening game of the season. En route to their smashing 62-7 victory, the Falcons either tied or broke 35 individual and/or team records.

Game No. 2

Los Angeles 31, Atlanta 0

Los Angeles Coliseum, 64,528

Whereas everything was almost letter-perfect one week earlier, nothing fell properly into place for the Falcons in Los Angeles. As a result, the Rams emerged victorious 31-0. Atlanta was limited to two first downs and 70 yards in total offense. Only 17 of that came via passing, Falcon quarterbacks hitting only two of nine attempts.

Game No. 3

Detroit 31, Atlanta 6

Tiger Stadium, 45,519

Detroit, capitalizing on Atlanta miscues throughout, stopped the Falcons, 31-6, in ABC-TV's third Monday Night Game of the season. The winners were aided tremendously by six sacks of the quarterback for 54 yards. Rookie kicking specialist Nick Mike-Mayer accounted for Atlanta's scoring with field goals of 48 and 27 yards.

Game No. 5

Atlanta 46, Chicago 6

Atlanta Stadium, 58,850

Bob Lee, getting his first call as a starting quarterback, answered loudly as he directed the Falcons to a big 46-6 victory over the Chicago Bears. The one-time Pacific star connected on 11 of 13 passes for 181 yards and two touchdowns. The Atlanta defense shared co-star billing, thanks to six sacks of Bear quarterbacks.

Atlanta 41, San Diego 0

San Diego Stadium, 41,527

Picking up where they left off against the Bears, the Falcons stunned San Diego, 41-0, for their second straight victory and third of the year. Reserve running back Eddie Ray led the scoring attack, piling into the end zone from two and 12 yards out. This marked only the second time an Atlanta team has won while playing on the west coast.

Atlanta 17, San Francisco 3

Candlestick Park, 56,825

Quarterback Bob Lee, playing before a hometown crowd of 56,825, proved to be a "local boy who really did do good" in directing the Falcons to a 17-3 victory over the always-tough 49ers. He completed 11 of 13 passes for 236 yards and two touchdowns. His scoring throws of 51 and 22 yards went to wide receiver Ken Burrow.

Atlanta 15, Los Angeles 13

Atlanta Stadium, 58,850

Atlanta got the biggest kick of its NFL life out of dependable Nick Mike-Mayer on this sun-kissed afternoon before a capacity crowd at the Stadium. The young 10th round draft choice from Temple University kicked a dramatic 16-yard field goal—His fifth of the game—with just 54 seconds remaining to whip Los Angeles, 15-13.

Game 10

Atlanta 20, Minnesota 14

Atlanta Stadium, 58, 850

Atlanta withstood a fast-closing Minnesota charge in the fourth period to whip the previously-unbeaten Vikings, 20-14, for its sixth straight victory and seventh of the season. The Falcons scored 17 points in the second quarter, twice on touchdown passes from quarterback Bob Lee.

Running back Dave Hampton caught the first TD pass, a 19-yard toss. Fellow back Eddie Ray pulled in the other, a 39 yarder.

Game 11

Atlanta 28, New York Jets 20

Shea Stadium 61, 327

The Falcons used three key pass interceptions—two by left safety Ray Brown—and a fumble recovery to literally slide by the New York Jets, 28-20, in a monsoon-like downpour at Shea Stadium. The victory pushed to eight the Falcons' total for the year, a new all-time high.

Running back Eddie Ray was once again one of the key workhorses in the win. In addition to his touchdown runs of one and two yards, he also rushed for a single game career high 76 yards.

Atlanta Stadium, 58, 850

Buffalo's incomparable O. J. Simpson, having one of the greatest seasons in the history of running backs in the NFL, grounded out 137 yards against Atlanta en route to a stunning 17-6 upset victory.

The Falcons' lone points of the day came via field goals. Rookie kicking specialist Nick Mike-Mayer got those on kicks of 26 and 16 yards, respectively.

In the beginning: Owner Rankin Smith with first Falcon ever, Tommy Nobis.

Falcon History Book, 1964-73

1964 "With money we don't have," Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen, Jr., said on the occasion, "for teams that don't exists," ground is broken for an $18 million stadium, April 15.

1965 With expansion as the No. 1 item on its agenda, the American Football League calls a meeting for June 7-8, June 3. Expansion in the National Football League, it announces, is planned for 1967. An AFL franchise is awarded to Atlanta and J. Leonard Reinsch of Cox Broadcasting Corporation, June 8. After the NFL alters its earlier plans and says it will expand a year earlier, Commissioner Pete Rozelle dispatches pollster Lou Harris to Atlanta. Harris' poll shows citizenry overwhelmingly favors NFL franchise over the AFL. "We're in the catbird seat," says Stadium Authority official Arthur Montgomery. Rankin M. Smith, 41-year-old executive vice president of Life Insurance Company of Georgia, is awarded an NFL franchise for approximately $8.5 million, June 30. Rights are quickly awarded Smith's franchise by the Stadium Authority. "Five Smiths, Inc.," so named for Smith's five children, is registered as corporate name for the team, Aug. 20. Stockholders are listed as Lindsey Hopkins, Jr., Howard Dobbs, Jr., Cody Laird, Jr., I. M. Sheffield, III, Dorothy Laird Williams, W. Barrett Howell, and M. E. Kilpatrick, Mr. Smith's attorney, Aug. 24. Miss Julia Elliott, Griffin, Ga., school teacher, is notified that her suggested nickname of the "Falcons" has been chosen in a local radio station's contest to name the team, Aug. 29. Florida A&M's Bob Paremore and Gary Barnes of Clemson are the first players signed, Sept. 9. An NFL record for ticket requests by a new team is set when 26,000 mark is reached, Nov. 24. Tommy Nobis, All-America linebacker from the University of Texas, and quarterback Randy Johnson of Texas A&I are co-first round choices, Nov. 27. When the count reaches 45,000, season ticket sales are stopped, Dec. 24.

1966 Norb Hecker, a member of Coach Vince Lombardi's staff at Green Bay, is named head coach, Jan. 26. Hal Herring, John Symank, Tom Fears, George Dickson and Brad Ecklund are hired as assistant coaches. The expansion draft finds the Falcons selecting 42 players, three from each of the 14 established teams, Feb. 15. A YMCA camp near Asheville, N. C., Blue Ridge Assembly, is named site of the Falcons' first training camp, March 26. The long-awaited NFL-AFL merger is announced, June 8. They will play separate schedules until 1970, but meet in championship and preseason games beginning in 1967. Frank E. Wall, a well-known Atlanta accountant, is named vice president and treasurer, June 14. Training camp opens, July 2. Falcons lose 9-7 to Philadelphia in their first preseason game, Aug. 1. Falcons are impressive in their first regular championship season game, a 19-14 loss to Los Angeles. A 53-yard pass from quarterback Randy Johnson to wide receiver Gary Barnes nets Atlanta its first touchdown ever, Sept. 11. Nine games later, Atlanta whips the New York Giants 27-16 for its first of three victories for the season, Nov. 30. The Falcons whip St. Louis, 16-10, for their first Atlanta Stadium victory, Dec. 11.

1967 Frank E. Wall is elevated to the role of general manager, Jan. 31. Falcons trade their No. 1 choice to San Francisco for wide receiver Bernie Casey, ex-University of Georgia tackle Jim Wilson and defensive end Jim Norton on the opening day of the NFL players draft, March 14. Training camp site shifts to Johnson City, Tenn., and the campus of East Tennessee State University, July 18. Falcons keep their owner Rankin Smith dry by beating Miami, 27-17, in second preseason game. Mr. Smith had pledged to jump into the Miami River if his team lost, Aug. 19. Middle linebacker Tommy Nobis returns intercepted pass 41 scoring yards to earn Falcons a big 21-20 upset victory over tough Minnesota, Oct. 30. Nobis is named All-Pro, Atlanta's first player so honored, Dec. 15. Club finishes season with dismal 1-12-1 with 23-14 loss to Chicago, Dec. 17.

1968 Former Washington and Dallas linebacker Tom Braatz is promoted from scout to director of player personnel, Jan. 22. Team emblem is replaced on sleeve of jersies by stripes, May 13. Norm Van Brocklin is named head coach, replacing Norb Hecker, Oct. 1. Club's 11-game losing streak comes to dramatic end with 24-21 victory over New York Giants. Five regulars are placed on waivers two weeks after Van Brocklin's arrival. They are cornerback Lee Calland, center Joe Cerne, running back Brendan McCarthy, defensive tackle Jim Norton and linebacker Marion Rushing, Nov. 14. Twenty-four hours after final game of season, five assistant coaches are dismissed, Dec. 15.

1969 Van Brocklin begins building his own staff of assistant coaches: Walt Yowarsky, Jan. 3; Bob Griffin, Jan. 9; Marion Campbell, Jan. 22; Duane Putnam, Jan. 23; Fred Bruney, March 28. Falcons win their first seasonal opener, beating San Francisco, 21-7, Sept. 21. Running back Junior Coffey, last of 42 original expansion draftees, is traded to New York Giants for two draft choices, Oct. 29. Atlanta upends Minnesota 10-7, stopping Vikings' 12-game winning streak. Triumph makes Falcons' record 6-8-1, best in club history, Dec. 21.

1970 Frank E. Wall is raised to the rank of team president, Rankin M. Smith to chairman of the board and Van Brocklin adds title of general manager, Jan. 6. Van Brocklin, as head coach, guides West to a 16-13 victory in the Pro Bowl, Jan. 18. Harry Gilmer is added to the coaching staff as an assistant, July 23. Team concludes finest preseason of its history with 20-17 conquest of Miami. Record stands at 4-1, Sept. 12.

1971 For first time in team history, ticket prices are raised. Most seats increase in price from $6 to $7.50, Jan. 3. Billy Ray Barnes joins staff as an assistant coach, Feb. 23. Van Brocklin, who became one of the game's all-time greats during his playing career at Los Angeles and Philadelphia, is elected to Pro Football Hall of Fame, Feb. 4. Furman University in Greenville, S. C., becomes the third home of Falcons' training camp, July 19. Van Brocklin is given a new multi-year contract, Oct. 25. Falcons post first winning season in history (7-6-1) after wide receiver Ken Burrow pulls in winning touchdown pass from quarterback Bob Berry in 24-20 victory over New Orleans, Dec. 19.

1972 Draft rights for Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan of Auburn is obtained as Falcons make four deals involving six veterans. Sullivan is chosen second, behind No. 1 pick Clarence Ellis of Notre Dame, Feb. 1. Sullivan and Ellis sign their contracts at dual ceremony at Atlanta Stadium, April 17. Sullivan is named the most valuable player in Chicago's College All-Star Game despite 20-7 loss to world champion Dallas Cowboys, July 29. Running back Dave Hampton scores two touchdowns and rushes for new club record of 161 yards as the Falcons stop Los Angeles, 31-3, for the club's first victory ever (in 11 games) over the Rams. Fellow running back Art Malone rushes for 103 yards, marking first time in Atlanta's seven-year history that two backs have ever gained 100 yards or more rushing in one game, Oct. 1. Despite having missed five full quarters earlier in the season due to an elbow injury, Hampton picks up 66 yards against Denver to break the existing club record for yards gained in a single season (722), Nov. 26. Three weeks later, Hampton gains enough yardage to go past 1000-yard rushing mark for season, then loses six of it to finish at 995, Dec. 17.

1973 Falcons trade quarterback Bob Berry and a No. 1 draft choice to Minnesota for veterans Bob Lee, a quarterback, and linebacker Lonnie Warwick, May 14. Smashing 35 team records in the process, Falcons soundly defeat New Orleans, 62-7, in the season's opener, Sept. 16. After three back-to-back defeats, Falcons return to their winning ways by defeating Chicago, 46-6. Down 10-0 early in the game, the Falcons rally behind the five field goals of kicking specialist Nick Mike-Mayer to defeat Los Angeles, 15-13, in one of the greatest victories in Atlanta history, Nov. 4. In one of the most dramatic comebacks in the club's history, the Falcons rebound to defeat the previously unbeaten Minnesota Vikings, 20-14, before a capacity Atlanta Stadium crowd and a national television audience, Nov. 11. Atlanta defeats the New York Jets in the rain and mud of Shea Stadium, 28-20, for their seventh straight victory. Falcons defeat New Orleans, 14-10, to end the season with nine victories and five defeats, the club's best record ever, Dec. 16. Needing 87 yards to crack the elusive 1000-Yard Club, Falcon running back Dave Hampton rushes for 84 against New Orleans, finishing three shy—997 yards for the year. Rookie kicking specialist Nick Mike-Mayer, defensive ends Claude Humphrey and John Zook and offensive tackle George Kunz are named to the National Football Conference Pro Bowl team, Dec. 18.

Play-by-play man Jack Hurst (L) welcomes Billy Lothridge to broadcast team.

Atlanta Falcons Radio Network

Jack Hurst, thanks to WQXI Radio, has told you all about every Atlanta Falcons game ever played. And he will be doing it again in 1974.

It will mark the ninth straight season that WQXI Radio has served as the flagship station of the Falcons Radio Network. Stations throughout Georgia and parts of Alabama and South Carolina have joined the network and that list was still growing at publication date.

While Hurst will again handle the play-by-play, he will be joined by a new companion in the booth. Billy Lothridge, one-time Falcons punting star who twice led the National Football League in that department, will provide the color and analysis.

Gerald Blum, executive vice president and general manager of WQXI Radio, also is director of the network.

WILT BROWNING

MEMO TO: NFL MEDIA

We hope you find this handbook useful in covering the 1974 Atlanta Falcons.

If you plan to attend a game at Atlanta Stadium, please write Wilt Browning well in advance for working credentials. Some 75 press seats are available for accredited sports representatives of daily newspapers.

Requests for photo passes (field or upper photo perches) should be so indicated.

Request for Western Union circuits should be directed to Hugh DaCosta, Western Union Telegraph Co., 56 Marietta St., N. W., Atlanta, 30303. Telephone (404) 688-9820.

If you wish to use Sports Com, your request should be directed to Bill Macke, Sports Com, P. O. Box 1222, Smyrna, Ga., 30080. Telephone (404) 233-2037, or 422-7057.

Unfortunately, we have limited space for sports-casters not actually announcing the game. We will, however, issue a seat in the stands when available.

With Falcon broadcaster Jack Hurst. If he got closer to the action, he'd be run off the field.

Jack Hurst broadcasts the Falcon games over WQXI Radio. He really gets in there and hustles to give you an exciting, colorful, play-by-play account of every Falcon game.

In fact, WQXI's Falcon coverage is so complete, we broadcast everything from pre-game warm-up to locker room recaps.

Tune in to 79, and see what we mean. To be any closer to the Falcons, you'd have to be one.
